Bunco Artists Get $21,000 From 3 Banks

Fake Telephone Calls Are Used To Extract Cash

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Bankers Association says bunco artists using a new con game have taken a total of $21,000 from three banks, two in southwestern Ohio and one in southeastern Indiana.

The banks, all in moderate-sized cities, were hit for $7,000 apiece, according to Rick Reagan, an association spokesman. He declined to identify the banks or the cities.

Meanwhile, police in Indiana reported the American National Bank of Muncie lost $8,390 Jan. 12 in a nearly identical operation.

The elaborate scheme involves the use of a corporation's bank account information obtained in a telephone call to the company by a person masquerading as a bank officer who says he is checking out the account.

Reagan said a call then is made to a teller in the victim bank by a person claiming to be the authorized signee for the corporation. The caller says a messenger is being sent to the bank with a $7,000 check to be cashed.

In a second call a short time later, the same teller is told the regular messenger is ill and a substitute will show up.

A third call follows and the teller is informed the messenger left without proper endorsement on the check and is asked to leave the cash in an envelope with the receptionist to give to the messenger.

Reagan said a cab driver then picks up the envelope with instructions to deliver it to the airport. But while en route to the airport the driver receives instructions from his dispatcher to take the envelope to a motel instead.

In the Muncie case, a man posed as a local businessman to get a security agent of the firm to pick up the money at the bank and deliver it to a taxi company, where a driver had been instructed to deliver it to Fort Wayne, 60 miles away.

HHH, Harris Hit Demo Mavericks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two liberal Democratic senators today will propose a plan aimed at keeping their rebellious colleagues in line by stripping the seniority of any senator calling himself a Democrat if he is disloyal to the national party.

The proposal, sponsored by Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma, is to be put before the Senate Democratic Conference.

The resolution could threaten the valuable seniority of Mississippi Sens. James O. Eastland and John C. Stennis. It is also aimed at discouraging Democratic senators from seeking office under another banner, as Virginia's Harry F. Byrd Jr. did in 1970 when he ran successfully as an independent.

Because of their considerable seniority, Eastland is chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee and Stennis is the Senate Armed Services Committee. The Harris-Humphrey proposal calls for stripping the seniority of any senator calling himself a Democrat if he:

—Supports or endorses someone for president or vice president other than the national party's nominees.

—Participates in or accepts the endorsement of any local or state party which practices religious, racial or sexual discrimination.

—Runs for re-election as something other than a member of the official Democratic party.

Repeal Of Women's Work Laws Voted

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After 12 years of trying, plus a boost from the Ohio Supreme Court, the House Tuesday voted 52-35 to repeal Ohio's restrictions on working women.

Fifty votes were needed for passage. The victory, when it finally came, was somewhat hollow. The court ruled last Wednesday the women's work law was invalid when it applied to firms employing 25 or more persons.

The bill, as it passed the House, applies to firms hiring under 25 persons. The supreme court said the same restrictions applying to larger firms violated the Civil Rights Act of 1964. The act prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex.

Organized labor, mainly the Ohio AFL-CIO, has attempted to block repeal of the measure since 1960. It offered three weakening amendments Tuesday, all of which met defeat. AFL-CIO President Frank King said the amendments would be attempted again when the bill goes to the Senate. He said the bill would have died in committee except for the court opinion.

King, former Democratic leader in the Senate, was happy because the House had to go on record in defeating one of the amendments—to raise the minimum wage in Ohio from $1.25 to $1.60 an hour.

"We've never been able to do that before," he said. He indicated labor will use the vote as a campaign issue in this year's legislative elections.

The bill would remove from Ohio law restrictions that limit women to working no more than 48 hours a week and not regularly lifting more than 25 pounds.

Throughout the past few years, women have descended on the Statehouse asking the laws be kept intact. Others who wanted more overtime and better jobs urged they be lifted.

A Democrat, Rep. Patrick Sweeney, D-47 Cleveland, carried the ball for repeal although his leader, Minority Leader A. G. Lancione, D-30 Bellaire, led the fight against it.

In other action, the House approved 78-1 a bill giving the state Controlling Board authority to spend emergency fund money.

Labor Poll Shows Wallace Running 4th In Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, who claims "I'm going to do well" in Wisconsin's presidential primary, is ranked No. 4 among the crowd of Democratic entries in a poll commissioned by his opponents in organized labor.

John W. Schmitt, president of the Wisconsin AFL-CIO, said Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and George McGovern of South Dakota all were rated ahead of Wallace in a telephone survey.

He refused to say what the poll indicated about their current standing or shares of support in the campaign for the primary next Tuesday.

"Go to the polls and give 'em a jolt," Wallace said as he campaigned for protest votes in Madison and La Crosse.

Humphrey, rated by most politicians as the Wisconsin favorite, went bowling in Wausau after telling some 300 people at a labor rally Tuesday night that the country needs jobs and his leadership could produce them.

He said the Republican administration is "pro-international finance, pro-conglomerate, pro-merger and anti-people."

McGovern went on a hand-shaking tour of four bowling alleys in Milwaukee after a campaign day concentrated in the city's black neighborhoods.

Hussein Requests More American Military Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan today switched the emphasis of his American visit from a plan for a semiautonomous Palestinian nation to a request for some $55 million more in U.S. military aid.

Hussein, the near-solitary ally of the United States in the Middle East Arab world, set an afternoon meeting with Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird to outline his additional arms needs.

Jordan already is getting $45 million this fiscal year in military assistance but wants additional help in the form of modern battle tanks, new M16 rifles and updated aircraft to replace the obsolete British and American planes that make up his air force.

Hussein originally asked for American Phantom jets but was told they are unsuitable for his needs and he downgraded his request to less complicated planes, such as the F104 Starfighter.

Death Penalty Ruling Attacked In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Supreme Court has received hundreds of letters opposing its ruling against the death penalty, including one addressed to "bubble-headed dum-dums."

"Nuts to you" was the sign-off.

It was one of more than 800 letters and postcards the state high court has received since its Feb. 18 ruling that the death penalty violates the California Constitution's protection against cruel or unusual punishment.

He said that would give people freedom of choice as to where they live and bring up their families.

Muskie, campaigning on his 58th birthday, said in Green Bay, "There is only one birthday gift I really want and that's a victory one week from tonight."

In Stevens Point, he proposed a $7.2-billion program of federal aid to improve schools and reduce the property-tax load.

Danger Of Breast Cancer Higher In Related Women

CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The danger that breast cancer may run in families is greater—in some cases by nine times—than has been generally supposed, a scientist said today.

It has been postulated that female relatives of mothers, sisters or aunts who had breast cancer face a two to threefold higher risk of getting such cancer.

The defense is for high-risk women to have frequent check-ups using all available techniques to spot breast cancers early when they might be easily curable, the researcher said.

And such a more intensive screening program might well turn up clues as to why different types of breast cancers develop and how to prevent them, he said.

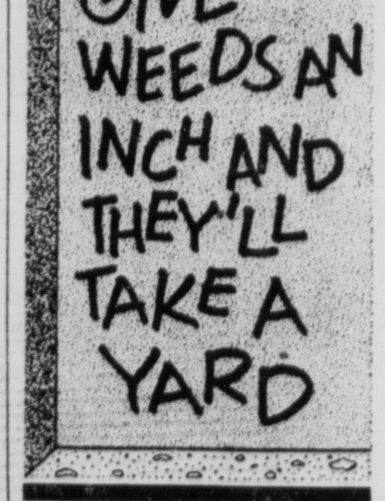

The revision in estimating the risk for relatives is based partly upon evidence about differences between breast cancers that occur before or after a woman's menopause, said Anderson, a geneticist and professor of biology at the University of Texas.

The risk for relatives is about three times higher than average if a woman had a breast cancer before menopause, Anderson said.

The risk for relatives is less than two times higher than average if a woman developed breast cancer after menopause.

If a woman's cancer develops in both breasts after menopause, the risk to relatives is 5.4 times higher. If this happens before menopause, then the risk is nine times higher.

But, a new on-going analysis of families is finding that the risk can be far higher and even nine times greater for some women, Anderson told an American Cancer Society seminar for free lance writers.

Food Price Meeting Opens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary John B. Connally called executives of 12 large food chains to a "quiet Texas chat" today over rising meat prices.

The closed-door session represents another move by the Nixon administration to try to stem the tide of recent sharp increases in food prices.

As Connally prepared for the meeting, the Cost of Living Council announced it is moving on four fronts to try to slow food prices, an area drawing more heat than any other part of President Nixon's price-control program.

The council said, for instance, that the Internal Revenue Service will begin immediately "intensive compliance surveys" on several large meat-packing organizations "to determine whether price violations are occurring in the total meat delivery chain from on-the-hoof to retail."

One administration source said several "prosecutions can be expected."

Last week, President Nixon announced the government would be investigating the middleman to determine if he is profiting from food pricing systems.

The council said several wholesalers are currently under investigation to assure compliance with price regulations. And it was learned that 17 manufacturing firms with annual sales of at least $100 million each are under scrutiny.

A number of major food chains are undergoing what the council calls "substantive compliance surveys" to get new information on meat-pricing practices.

In addition, the council said, it will look closely at quarterly reports of major food chains "to isolate instances of excessive profits which may be attributable to illegal mark-ups."

Spring Storm Spreads Over Central U.S.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A large early-spring storm spread severe weather and travel warnings from northern Illinois to Mississippi today, with tornadoes, hail, heavy rain and snow reported in various areas.

A tornado dipped into an area near Clinton, Ark., late Tuesday, and heavy winds destroyed a tractor and uprooted several trees in a rural area of western Tennessee. No injuries were reported.

Hailstones up to 2 inches in diameter pounded sections of Arkansas. A thunderstorm with 46-mile-an-hour winds dumped nearly 2 inches of rain on Greenwood, Miss.

Heavy snow fell north of the rain areas. Up to 4 inches blanketed Burlington, Iowa, and travel warnings were posted from Missouri to northern Illinois.

Snow also piled up in the Rockies, with 5 inches falling on Cheyenne, Wyo., and 2 inches in Kalispell, Mont.

Generally, fair and cool weather was the rule in the rest of the country.

Nutrition Labeling Of Food Proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration today proposed a voluntary nutrition-labeling program which would tell consumers at a glance the amount of vitamins, minerals and protein in packaged food.

If implemented nationwide, FDA Commissioner Charles B. Edwards said, it "could provide one of the most fundamental changes in the history of food-labeling in this country."

The concept was endorsed by the 1969 White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health which recommended: "Every manufacturer should be encouraged to provide truthful nutritional information to consumers about his product to enable them to follow recommended dietary regimen."

Although unlikely to become mandatory for years, an FDA spokesman said many food manufacturers could be expected to pick up the idea at once.

Those participating in the program would be required to label a food's caloric content in terms of cups or slices; number of grams of protein, fat and carbohydrates; and at least seven specific vitamins and minerals in percentage of an average person's recommended daily allowance.

At minimum, the labeling would have to include the percentage of vitamins A, C, B1 and B2, niacin, calcium, and iron, but also could include various other vitamins and minerals.

Interested parties have 90 days to comment on the proposal.

Originally starting with six alternative approaches to nutrition labeling, the FDA said it enlisted the help of professional nutrition groups, consumer organizations, the food industry, home economists and dieticians to pare the choices at hand.

Five big food-store chains—Giant, Jewel, Kroger, First National and National Co-Op—carried out tests of the remaining alternative plans in their stores.

"Out of several hundred letters from consumers, only three opposed nutrition labeling," the FDA said. "Those objected because of anticipated price increases resulting from the labeling."

The agency did not indicate whether it thinks the new labeling proposal would boost food prices.

Arlington Burial Bid Turned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We consider the case closed," the Army spokesman said.

This apparently means that World War I doughboy A. Henry Kauffman will not get his last wish to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery—"where my buddies are"—even though he won the nation's second highest decoration for bravery.

What it seems to boil down to is that the Army is afraid of setting a precedent, making an exception that might invite a torrent of requests from old soldiers for a resting place in the country's best-known military burial grounds.

Yet there have been two exceptions to the stringent rules, laid down in 1967 because Arlington was running out of space.

Army records show that President Lyndon B. Johnson directed the burial there of Judge Paul Kilday of the court of military appeals, a former Texas congressman.

Later, according to the records, President Nixon authorized burial there for Merriman Smith, United Press International White House reporter whose son had been killed in Vietnam and also lies in Arlington.

Sen. Jackson Set For Ohio Effort

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., indicated Tuesday he intends to make a major effort to win Ohio's Democratic National Convention seats in the May 2 primary.

While campaigning for next Tuesday's Wisconsin primary, Jackson said some "priority decisions" will have to be made after this test to determine which other primaries to concentrate on winning.

"Ohio will be given a very high priority," he said.

Catholics Driven Out Of Homes

BELFAST (AP) — Bombs killed two persons and wrecked a row of shops and Protestant homes and drove the occupants from others Tuesday as the violence in Northern Ireland took a new turn.

The bombs went off at Limavady, in County Derry. One was planted in a truck outside a police station and killed two civilians driving past. The blast blew out the windows of the police station, slightly injuring a typist. The other bomb destroyed several stores.

The Protestant mobs, dormant for more than a year, took to the streets Tuesday night after a giant rally protesting the adjournment of the provincial parliament and its suspension for a year. The moves were ordered by Britain as part of a plan aimed at ending 32 months of violence in Ulster. The British House of Commons voted 483 to 18 Tuesday night to support direct rule from London. The measure becomes law tonight.

Crowds of Protestant youths attacked a store on Belfast's Oldpark Road, a street where Roman Catholics are a 3-1 minority. The homes of two Catholic families were burned.

Earlier in the evening, elderly Catholics were driven out of their houses in the same street by Protestant youths who smashed their windows with stones. Fire engines were pelted with missiles, and British troops had to force their way to the fire with armored cars.

A ring of armor was thrown around Belfast's Catholic Unity Flats district when it was threatened by a Protestant crowd.

In Portadown, in County Armagh, where militant Protestants have taken over, barricades sealing off Catholic streets were guarded by some soldiers while others tore down Protestant barriers.

The British troops had been maligned by Catholics as instruments of Protestant domination. But with the provincial government swept aside by London, the picture significantly changed. The Catholics fear a violent Protestant backlash against the loss of power and on Tuesday, Catholic women were giving tea to the soldiers manning the Portadown barricades.

Nader Suit Dismissed

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A state Superior Court judge today dismissed a lawsuit filed by Ralph Nader challenging a controversial Justice Department settlement permitting the merger of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

ITT headquarters in New York issued a statement saying it was "gratified" by the decision denying the appeal of consumer advocate Nader, who sought to overturn the decision of former Insurance Commissioner William Cotter.

Cotter's decision permitted ITT to tender for the stock of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Some 99 per cent of the Hartford stock was subsequently transferred to ITT.

A spokesman said "this was Nader's third attempt to overturn the ITT-Hartford affiliation and on all three occasions he had been rebuffed."

If implemented nationwide, FDA Commissioner Charles B. Edwards said, it "could provide one of the most fundamental changes in the history of food-labeling in this country."

The concept was endorsed by the 1969 White House Conference on Food, Nutrition and Health which recommended: "Every manufacturer should be encouraged to provide truthful nutritional information to consumers about his product to enable them to follow recommended dietary regimen."

Although unlikely to become mandatory for years, an FDA spokesman said many food manufacturers could be expected to pick up the idea at once.

Those participating in the program would be required to label a food's caloric content in terms of cups or slices; number of grams of protein, fat and carbohydrates; and at least seven specific vitamins and minerals in percentage of an average person's recommended daily allowance.

At minimum, the labeling would have to include the percentage of vitamins A, C, B1 and B2, niacin, calcium, and iron, but also could include various other vitamins and minerals.

Interested parties have 90 days to comment on the proposal.

Originally starting with six alternative approaches to nutrition labeling, the FDA said it enlisted the help of professional nutrition groups, consumer organizations, the food industry, home economists and dietitians to pare the choices at hand.

Five big food-store chains—Giant, Jewel, Kroger, First National and National Co-Op—carried out tests of the remaining alternative plans in their stores.

"Out of several hundred letters from consumers, only three opposed nutrition labeling," the FDA said. "Those objected because of anticipated price increases resulting from the labeling."

The agency did not indicate whether it thinks the new labeling proposal would boost food prices.

Arlington Burial Bid Turned Down

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We consider the case closed," the Army spokesman said.

This apparently means that World War I doughboy A. Henry Kauffman will not get his last wish to be buried in Arlington National Cemetery—"where my buddies are"—even though he won the nation's second highest decoration for bravery.

What it seems to boil down to is that the Army is afraid of setting a precedent, making an exception that might invite a torrent of requests from old soldiers for a resting place in the country's best-known military burial grounds.

Yet there have been two exceptions to the stringent rules, laid down in 1967 because Arlington was running out of space.

Army records show that President Lyndon B. Johnson directed the burial there of Judge Paul Kilday of the court of military appeals, a former Texas congressman.

Later, according to the records, President Nixon authorized burial there for Merriman Smith, United Press International White House reporter whose son had been killed in Vietnam and also lies in Arlington.

Sen. Jackson Set For Ohio Effort

APPLETON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., indicated Tuesday he intends to make a major effort to win Ohio's Democratic National Convention seats in the May 2 primary.

While campaigning for next Tuesday's Wisconsin primary, Jackson said some "priority decisions" will have to be made after this test to determine which other primaries to concentrate on winning.

"Ohio will be given a very high priority," he said.

Catholics Driven Out Of Homes

BELFAST (AP) — Bombs killed two persons and wrecked a row of shops and Protestant homes destroyed two Catholic homes and drove the occupants from others Tuesday as the violence in Northern Ireland took a new turn.

The bombs went off at Lismavady, in County Derry. One was planted in a truck outside a police station and killed two civilians driving past. The blast blew out the windows of the police station, slightly injuring a typist. The other bomb destroyed several stores.

The Protestant mobs, dormant for more than a year, took to the streets Tuesday night after a giant rally protesting the adjournment of the provincial parliament and its suspension for a year. The moves were ordered by Britain as part of a plan aimed at ending 32 months of violence in Ulster. The British House of Commons voted 483 to 18 Tuesday night to support direct rule from London. The measure becomes law tonight.

Crowds of Protestant youths attacked a store on Belfast's Oldpark Road, a street where Roman Catholics are a 3-1 minority. The homes of two Catholic families were burned.

Earlier in the evening, elderly Catholics were driven out of their houses in the same street by Protestant youths who smashed their windows with stones. Fire engines were pelted with missiles, and British troops had to force their way to the fire with armored cars.

A ring of armor was thrown around Belfast's Catholic Unity Flats district when it was threatened by a Protestant crowd.

In Portadown, in County Armagh, where militant Protestants have taken over, barricades sealing off Catholic streets were guarded by some soldiers while others tore down Protestant barriers.

The British troops had been maligned by Catholics as instruments of Protestant domination. But with the provincial government swept aside by London, the picture significantly changed. The Catholics fear a violent Protestant backlash against the loss of power and on Tuesday, Catholic women were giving tea to the soldiers manning the Portadown barricades.

Nader Suit Dismissed

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A state Superior Court judge today dismissed a lawsuit filed by Ralph Nader challenging a controversial Justice Department settlement permitting the merger of International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. and Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

ITT headquarters in New York issued a statement saying it was "gratified" by the decision denying the appeal of consumer advocate Nader, who sought to overturn the decision of former Insurance Commissioner William Cotter.

Cotter's decision permitted ITT to tender for the stock of the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. Some 99 percent of the Hartford stock was subsequently transferred to ITT.

A spokesman said "this was Nader's third attempt to overturn the ITT-Hartford affiliation and on all three occasions he had been rebuffed."

Carl Stokes Becomes Television Talker

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Carl Stokes, the first black mayor of a major U.S. city, is becoming a television newscaster.

Stokes will become coanchor-man of the evening news show for WNCN-TV, the flagship station in New York City for the National Broadcasting Co. He is believed to have signed a two-year, six-figure contract.

Death Penalty Ruling Attacked In California

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The California Supreme Court has received hundreds of letters opposing its ruling against the death penalty, including one addressed to "bubble-headed dum-dums." "Nuts to you" was the sign-off.

It was one of more than 800 letters and postcards the state high court has received since its Feb. 18 ruling that the death penalty violates the California Constitution's protection against cruel or unusual punishment. Gale Bishell, clerk in the court's San Francisco headquarters, estimates that 700 of the missives are against the court's 6-1 ruling.

"Millions will now start carrying guns as the courts condone crime and make heroes out of violators," fumed "Nuts to you."

Another writer suggested a vote against every judge whose appointment is up for confirmation.

"Some good judges may be hurt—but there are enough bad apples in the judicial barrel to cast doubt on all of them," the writer added.

A letter from a traveling citizen in Algeria was addressed to "The Department of Injustice Building" in Sacramento.

"After reading of our 'learned and august' Supreme (?) Court's decision, the first question that came to my mind is how can we citizens fire the Supreme Court judges?" the writer said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's press secretary, Ed Gray, said the governor's office received 3,700 letters in the month following the ruling with 77 writers agreeing with the court.

"I don't think, for the same period of time, we have ever gotten anything like this number of letters," Gray said.

Not all the letters are complimentary. "The Supreme Court has made a good decision in the interests of human life," said one supporter.

"In the face of so much opposition you deserve special congratulations," wrote a San Diego woman.

"It's starting to taper off now," said Al Bradovich, the court's clerk in Sacramento, where most of the mail has been received.

He and Bishell estimated that about one-fourth of the mail is anonymous.

None of the justices has publicly commented on the mail. "They read it," Bishell said. "I doubt if they spend much time with the unsigned mail."

A petition campaign is under way to place a constitutional amendment restoring the death penalty on California's November ballot.

The bill, if it passes the Senate, puts into statute what the last appropriations bill provided. Sponsors said the bill would clarify the earlier decision.

Both legislative actions usurp most of the authority of the state Emergency Board, which in recent months has been relegated to approving mostly out-of-state travel expense vouchers.

Before passing the measure, the House removed another attempt by Rep. Robert Netzley, R-7 Laura, to get in a provision to exempt all pensions from the state income tax.

Netzley stuck the provision in during a House Finance Committee meeting the night earlier. It was taken out with an amendment by Rep. E. W. Lampson, R-38 Jefferson.

Netzley had tried an identical ploy last month, but the bill was put in committee and a new one provided in its place.

Netzley opponents, including House Speaker Charles Kurfess, R-4 Perryburg, contend the Senate is now working on an exemption bill that includes not only pensions but disability pay—with a cutoff level based on income.

Rep. William Batchelder, R-23 Medina, called the 53-29 rejection of the Netzley proposal a victory "for the Gilligan administration and its allies."

Existing law exempts only state and public employees, federal-exempted railroad retirement funds, and social security benefits from the income tax.

from the Record Hop which was held recently to Richard E. Plum, Easter Seal campaign chairman for Pickaway County.

Students' Record Hop Benefits Easter Seals

Despite the adverse news one hears of some of the young in our nation, it cannot apply to students from Pickaway County High Schools who have been using their energies and talents for the 1972 Easter Seal Campaign.

The youths who deserve much praise for arranging the affair were: Patty Kibler, Cathy Jones, Karen Kellough, Sharon Carter, Elaine Hill, Becky Steele, Bill Allison and Tom Whaley.

Pollution Threat Seen In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Wastes dumped by Louisiana industries into the Mississippi River pose a threat to the drinking water of 1.5 million people, may make fish unfit to eat and threaten to change the ecology of the Gulf of Mexico, a draft report of the Environmental Protection Agency says.

Robert Lafleur, executive secretary of the Louisiana Stream Control Commission, said he found the data gathered in the report of invaluable assistance in cleaning up the river. But he questioned the conclusions about imminent danger to the human population.

"The health and well-being of 1.5 million people, who drink water from water plants using the Mississippi River as the source of raw water, may be endangered by the discharge of industrial wastes containing materials known to have toxic (poisonous), carcinogenic (cancer-producing), teratogenic (monstrosity-producing), or mutagenic (mutation-producing) properties," the draft report states.

The report cites the dumping of heavy metals and organic compounds as the primary areas of concern because of their potential effects on human and aquatic life.

"The concern, however, goes beyond the life of the river itself and the health of the people living along its banks; it extends into that vital body of water—the Gulf of Mexico," the draft copy states.

Report Student Aid Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a bitter debate, Senate House conferees on the $23-billion higher-education bill have agreed on a student-assistance package from the Senate version, committee sources say.

The plan, sponsored by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., head of the Senate delegation and chairman of the education subcommittee, is designed to give more equitable financial aid to the nation's 8 million college students.

Angela Davis Trial Starts; Escape Bid Not Connected

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The Angela Davis trial resumes today after a day's delay caused by a nearby jailbreak attempt that cost the ringleader his life as two hostages were rescued.

The escape attempt at the Santa Clara County Jail Tuesday had no connection with the trial of the 28-year-old black militant, charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in the 1971 Marin County Courthouse shootout. That also was an escape attempt with hostages.

Jacob Zitzer, also known as Jacob Williamson, a 30-year-old murder convict, was shot dead after more than two hours of negotiations with sheriff's deputies. Two other inmates were recaptured and their two hostages were rescued unhurt.

The incident began nearly an hour before Miss Davis' attorneys—or perhaps Miss Davis herself—were to begin opening statements in her Superior Court trial, being conducted under tight security just 200 feet from the scene of the escape attempt. It paralyzed the entire Civic Center complex.

The trial was recessed by Judge Richard E. Arnason, giving the defense an extra day to prepare its presentation.

Santa Rosa County Under-sheriff Tom Rosa said Zitzer and the other two prisoners, each armed with a 12-inch knife, entered the jail's sickbay on the second floor, took a lawyer and a secretary as hostages and demanded a getaway car with the motor running.

They threatened to kill the hostages unless their demands were met, Rosa said.

"To show they were not kidding, Zitzer plunged a knife into his own leg," he added.

Sheriff's deputies negotiated with the trio for two hours until one inmate demanded that Capt. Wesley Johnson surrender his gun and handcuffs. Johnson refused and Zitzer said, "Okay, we'll kill them all, then."

As Zitzer turned to walk back to an elevator where his companions were holding the hostages, a deputy fired one blast from a shotgun, killing him. Rosa said the gun was fired by Sgt. Robert Lees.

Deputies rushed to the elevator and released the hostages, identified as Sue Kawamoto, 20, the secretary, and Alex Safonoff, 30, a public defender.

The other two prisoners, Norman Lucas, 22, and Ted Guerrero, 24, were not injured but were taken to a hospital where doctors said they were in "an emotional state of shock."

Netzel stuck the provision in during a House Finance Committee meeting the night earlier. It was taken out with an amendment by Rep. E. W. Lamson, R-38 Jefferson.

Netzel had tried an identical ploy last month, but the bill was put in committee and a new one provided in its place.

Netzel opponents, including House Speaker Charles Kurfess, R-4 Perryburg, contend the Senate is now working on an exemption bill that includes not only pensions but disability pay—with a cutoff level based on income.

Rep. William Batchelder, R-23 Medina, called the 53-29 rejection of the Netzel proposal a victory "for the Gilligan administration and its allies."

Existing law exempts only state and public employees, federal-exempted railroad retirement funds, and social security benefits from the income tax.

Other area persons attending were Daisy Gillespie of New Holland, county chairwoman and Guy Sark of Ashville, central chairman.

GOP plans, programs and campaign data were reviewed at the conference attended by all county chairwomen and chairmen. Also attending the meeting from the 6th District was Jennings B. Cole of Portsmouth, a state committeeman.

Speakers included Andrews, Miss Martha C. Moore, state vice chairman and Harold T. Duryee, executive assistant to the state chairman.

Eight such conferences are being held this spring by the GOP across the state to lay plans for the coming campaign.

FOR EASTER SEALS — Patty Kibler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kibler Route 5, turns over the proceeds from the Record Hop which was held recently to Richard E. Plum, Easter Seal campaign chairman for Pickaway County.

Students' Record Hop Benefits Easter Seals

Despite the adverse news one hears of some of the young in our nation, it cannot apply to students from Pickaway County High Schools who have been using their energies and talents for the 1972 Easter Seal Campaign.

Recently a Record Hop was held in the 4-H Grange Building at the Fairgrounds with all of the proceeds going to Easter Seals.

Circleville High School and Circleville Junior High took first and second place for the largest attendance and Logan Elm took third place. The students were appreciative of the two deputies from the Sheriff's office who donated their time. John Bost and Larry Eitel. Jim Fletcher, guidance counselor at Logan Elm High School and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Warren served as chaperones. Mrs. Helen Allison donated the use of her stereo speakers and microphones for the event.

The group received an unexpected pleasure when Laura Sue Rader, Pickaway County's Easter Seal child appeared, it served to remind all "what Easter Seals are all about."

Pollution Threat Seen In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Wastes dumped by Louisiana industries into the Mississippi River pose a threat to the drinking water of 1.5 million people, may make fish unfit to eat and threaten to change the ecology of the Gulf of Mexico, a draft report of the Environmental Protection Agency says.

Robert Lafleur, executive secretary of the Louisiana Stream Control Commission, said he found the data gathered in the report of invaluable assistance in cleaning up the river. But he questioned the conclusions about imminent danger to the human population.

"The health and well-being of 1.5 million people, who drink water from water plants using the Mississippi River as the source of raw water, may be endangered by the discharge of industrial wastes containing materials known to have toxic (poisonous), carcinogenic (cancer-producing), teratogenic (monstrosity-producing), or mutagenic (mutation-producing) properties," the draft report states.

The report cites the dumping of heavy metals and organic compounds as the primary areas of concern because of their potential effects on human and aquatic life.

"The concern, however, goes beyond the life of the river itself and the health of the people living along its banks; it extends out into that vital body of water—the Gulf of Mexico," the draft copy states.

Report Student Aid Plan Backed

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a bitter debate, Senate House conferees on the $23-billion higher-education bill have agreed on a student-assistance package from the Senate version, committee sources say.

Announcement of the decision has not been made and it could be reversed later, but sources said Tuesday the provision was accepted by House conferees on an 11-9 vote.

The plan, sponsored by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., head of the Senate delegation and chairman of the education subcommittee, is designed to give more equitable financial aid to the nation's 8 million college students.

Angela Davis Trial Starts; Escape Bid Not Connected

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The Angela Davis trial resumes today after a day's delay caused by a nearby jailbreak attempt that cost the ringleader

his life as two hostages were rescued.

The escape attempt at the Santa Clara County jail Tuesday had no connection with the trial of the 28-year-old black militant, charged with murder, kidnapping and conspiracy in the 1971 Marin County Courthouse shootout. That also was an escape attempt with hostages.

Jacob Zitzer, also known as Jacob Williamson, a 30-year-old murder convict, was shot dead after more than two hours of negotiations with sheriff's deputies. Two other inmates were recaptured and their two hostages were rescued unhurt.

The incident began nearly an hour before Miss Davis' attorneys—or perhaps Miss Davis herself—were to begin opening statements in her Superior Court trial, being conducted under tight security just 200 feet from the scene of the escape attempt. It paralyzed the entire Civic Center complex.

The trial was recessed by Judge Richard E. Arnason, giving the defense an extra day to prepare its presentation.

Santa Rosa County Under-sheriff Tom Rosa said Zitzer and the other two prisoners, each armed with a 12-inch knife, entered the jail's sickbay on the second floor, took a lawyer and a secretary as hostages and demanded a getaway car with the motor running.

They threatened to kill the hostages unless their demands were met, Rosa said.

"To show they were not kidding, Zitzer plunged a knife into his own leg," he added.

Sheriff's deputies negotiated with the trio for two hours until one inmate demanded that Capt. Wesley Johnson surrender his gun and handcuffs. Johnson refused and Zitzer said, "Okay, we'll kill them all, then."

As Zitzer turned to walk back to an elevator where his companions were holding the hostages, a deputy fired one blast from a shotgun, killing him. Rosa said the gun was fired by Sgt. Robert Lees.

Deputies rushed to the elevator and released the hostages, identified as Sue Kawamoto, 20, the secretary, and Alex Safonoff, 30, a public defender.

The other two prisoners, Norman Lucas, 22, and Ted Guerrero, 24, were not injured but were taken to a hospital where doctors said they were in "an emotional state of shock."

Business Briefs

Richard Huggins and Edward T. Bohenko employees of the George W. Van Camp Company, attended the 1972 series of short courses and seminars sponsored by the Ohio Contractors Assn. The Ohio State University's Department of Civil Engineers and the College of Administrative Science, held at the Center for Tomorrow in Columbus. The courses dealt with water and sewerline excavation and installation.

Other members present at last night's meeting were Wayne Griffith, Nolo Gulick, Russ Toole, Henry McCrady, Kermit Dountz, Don Bower, Waldo Swoyer, Don Archer.

Mrs. Priscilla Steele, a representative of Barrett Cargo-Withers and associates, the commission's advisers, was present.

The group will study a thoroughfare plan, solid waste disposal, county wide planning and zoning, sewer district, building code and inspection, county house numbering, environmental pollution.

The next meeting will be 7:30 p. m. April 18 at the court house.

College graduates of a decade or two ago who worked hard to achieve a "C" average very likely could make a "B" average today. College grades on the average are increasing, with indications, relaxed rating systems are responsible.

A study of 435 colleges and universities conducted by an official of San Francisco State College found undergraduate grade averages increased from 2.40 in 1960 to 2.56 in 1969. At the same time scores on college aptitude tests taken by high school seniors declined.

The trend toward higher grades appears to have been accelerating ever since 1968. What is bringing this about apparently is a change in methods of teaching as well as election of courses.

Not all responses to this and other studies were as extreme as that given by a University of Wisconsin senior. "No question about it," he said. "I never go to school any more, and I still get wonderful grades. There's a common consensus here that it's a lot easier to get good grades."

Nevertheless the trend is clear. The only question is whether the students actually are getting smarter, or the pals on the faculty only make them seem as if they are.

Why All The Hurry?

Despite what you may hear, most people are busy. For most persons the tempo has been speeded up until they are constantly in a hurry, living in a rush from morning until night. People travel at top speed to gain minutes for which they have no particular need or use.

Hurry has become a bad habit, a state of mind from which people suffer and for which they pay the penalty in loss of health.

The difference between a car speed of 70 miles an hour and 50 miles is small in the time required to reach a destination. But it can be considerable in terms of safety and its effects upon human nerves.

Motorists who jump the lights to gain a fraction of a second accomplish no more in the course of a day than those who drive deliberately and carefully.

There is no need to hurry through life, missing much of the fun along the way. Those who take it easy and relax frequently discover they aren't half as busy as they thought they were.

Stock Splits

Stock splits figure prominently in the news for the first time in months. Some financial experts foresee an epidemic of splits later in the year, if the market continues to advance.

Splits — where a company replaces outstanding shares with two shares or more of new stock for each share of old held by stockholders — give a "lift" to the market as nothing else can.

While actually a stock that has been split two-for-one has only half its former value, the lower price is more attractive to buyers, which has a bullish effect on market quotations. Frequently, rumors of an impending split, not all of which are borne out, send stocks upward.

While the usual split is two-for-one, it can be anything. And on occasion there have been reverse splits.

Is it dangerous to take tranquilizers over a long period of time?

Is it possible to become addicted to these drugs?

Miss E. B. A., R. I.

Dear Miss A.:

All drugs that act as tranquilizers, stimulants or psycho-energizers must be taken with extreme care. Their use should be limited to the prescribed amount and the directions set down by the doctor.

All of these drugs are complex chemicals. Therefore, they affect the body and the mind in a number of ways.

Dependence and addiction are different by definition and by fact. One can grow to be dependent on a tranquilizer that accomplishes the purpose for which it was ordered, namely, to relieve tension.

Unfortunately, there are some people who reason in this specious way: They might say, "If one pill is good, then two pills should be better." Or, they might say, "If one pill twice a day is good, then why not one pill four times a day?"

It is by this lack of discipline that the use of drugs can advance to overuse, and finally, to abuse.

Such reckless misuse can be the forerunner of addiction.

Do all impacted teeth have to be removed, even if they don't cause any trouble?

Mr. G. F., La.

Dear Mr. F.: A dentist, particularly interested in this problem, was consulted. In general, his feeling was that impacted third molars could be left alone in healthy people above the age of 35.

He thought, too, that there may be too great a tendency to suggest removal of these teeth simply because they are present. This is not valid if there are no associated dental problems.

Impacted molars must be kept under observation to be certain that they do not become possible sources of deep infection or the cause of neurological pain.

Occasionally these teeth may be responsible for pressure changes on the adjacent teeth and therefore need extraction.

Obviously these teeth may be responsible for pressure changes on the adjacent teeth and therefore need extraction.

Obviously many factors must be taken into consideration before a decision is made.

The experienced oral surgeon, after study with X-rays and models of the bite, can arrive at the best decision.

How can cracks in the corners of the mouth be prevented?

Mrs. L., N. D.

Dear Mrs. L.: Fissures in the corners of the mouth in the elderly may be the result of poorly fitting dentures. A small amount of saliva may accumulate and be a source of irritation that keeps the cracks open. Vitamin deficiencies are often falsely thought to be the cause of this annoying condition when a far simpler one can be found. Lubrication of the lips and the removal of the basic cause are often the total cure.

Supervising The Supervisors

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Keeping up with Ralph Nader, the indefatigable tribune for the nation's consumers, is a man-sized task. He is all over the place with recommendations for a score of watchdog propositions, ranging from the idea of Federal licensing of corporations to the creation of raider groups designed to cow any Congressman who might, conceivably in the quite legitimate pursuit of fairness, be inclined to give half an ear to a lobbyist for a producer interest.

Aside from the difficulty of keeping up with Nader, a critic must reckon with the fact that Naderism has become a sacrosanct cause, like home, mother and apple pie. It is a sure ticket to unpopularity, especially in an election year, to doubt the virtue of a Nader edict.

So why am I sticking my neck out to voice an objection to the Nader-inspired Congressional bill that would create an overall consumer agency with the power to question any decision of the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Communications Commission, the Securities Exchange Commission, etcetera, etcetera?

If the principle of regulation is good, why isn't it a super-good to set up a watchdog body to supervise the regulators?

Well, what bothers me is that if the FTC, the ICC, the NLRB and all the other existing regulatory agencies are incapable of making honest investigations and promulgating sound decisions, a super-agency would soon be vulnerable to the same sort of corruption that afflicts the lesser bodies. If strict government intervention on behalf of the consumer would really protect him, the power is already there; it has recently been affirmed by a Supreme Court decision in a tracing stamp case that gives the Federal Trade Commission a vastly broadened mandate to crack down on commercial practices that may be deemed unfair. If the FTC isn't capable of playing an effective watchdog role, then there must be some inherent reason why no regulatory body will succeed over any two-generation span of time.

It beats me that Ralph Nader, who once commended his home town of Winsted, Conn., for rejecting government-subsidized housing on the ground that it would keep the "market" from delivering better homes for lower costs, can't see that if he is unable to reform the FTC or the ICC, then he would be surely unable to keep a super-agency pure over the years. The "law" of the regulatory agency would seem to be that "adversary advocacy" is soon submerged by a shortsighted community of interest between the regulators and the industries to be regulated. It happened in the case of the ICC, which became a most inept spokesman body for the railroads themselves. We get far better service today from the relatively unregulated trucking industry than we do from the regulated railroads.

The idea of "adversary advocacy" works much better when it operates through the very market place that Nader, since his Winsted days, has come to distrust.

For example, the American motorist is just now showing an interest in radial tires, which European car owners have accepted as being both safer and more economical than the older type tires. Our big tire companies with an expensive capital investment in machinery that will soon be as outdated as the Bessemer furnace, are naturally loathe to make immediate adaptations to a change in taste. But the market will force them to give the consumer what he wants.

The big mail-order house, which is already supplying the radial tire market, is immune to any possible price-cutting reprisals by the standard tire salesmen, for when you sell a vast variety of products to millions of people, as the mail-order house does, you can always meet the competition in any single commodity. Thus the American tire buyer is going to get the best safety tire that can be devised without the help of any Nader-inspired super-regulatory agency.

Ralph Nader is doing a good job as a free lance, utilizing such free-market testing agencies as Consumer's Union to pound home a criticism of a variety of goods and services. Journalism is the proper place for "adversary advocacy," which can only be corrupted if the taxpayer is called upon to pay for it.

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Dear Editor:

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America fully supports the decision of the AFL-CIO and AUW Executive Boards to withdraw their representatives from the Phase Two Pay Board.

When Nixon announced the wage freeze last August, the UE said that "the labor movement has absolutely no choice but to mount a united struggle to defeat this monstrous attack that the President and the corporations have unleashed on it."

Again, when Phase Two was announced, we publicly stated that it does nothing but continue the Nixon policy of putting the blame and burden of inflation on the working people of America.

Certainly the recent statistics on profit increases in 1971 — the year of the freeze — reveals exactly what the point of the controls has been. The companies control wages but simply pocket the money. According to the Wall Street Journal after tax profits of 464 companies rose 25.3 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1971 from the like $471,800,000, or $143 million.

Electric net profits in 1971 were $471,800,000, or $143 million higher than in 1970.

The 58 million workers in private industry are today earning an average weekly wage of $129 or $6,708 per year, which provides them with a bare bone existence, and a real wage that has remained virtually unchanged over the past six years. And although the profits were 30 per cent better than their previous best year, the average annual wages for GE workers are $3,477 short of the Government's moderate budget for an urban family of four.

It is to this imbalance that working people must address themselves, and to the terrible inflationary pressures of military spending and corporate profiteering on that spending.

Since its inception, we have contended that the Pay Board is a deck stacked against the working people.

The $50,000 damage suit of Lillian Young against Milton Friedman and his mother, Pauline Friedman, was underway with difficulty in selecting a jury. The accident occurred at the corner of Main and Pickaway Sts., causing permanent injury to the woman's leg. Both parties were prominent Circleville citizens. A jury of Mrs. M. C. Jennings, Clarence Noecker, Mrs. Charles Gildersleeve, John A. Wolford, Mrs. George Adkins, Earl Arnold, Henry Rhoads, Mrs. Edward Dountz, Mrs. John Downs, Daniel Taylor, Ralph Head and O. S. Woerber never heard any testimony as the case was settled out of court and dismissed.

Stevenson's appliance and furniture store offered 1,000 pounds of ice free with each refrigerator purchased before April 2.

John Rooney went to Lansing, Mich., to drive home a Hup sport roadster.

School at Five Points was again closed on account of an outbreak of scarlet fever.

Herbert Lyons of New Holland, who played first base on the Eagle ball team here, went to Danville, Ill., where he was given a tryout.

E. P. Folrod was honored by a surprise birthday party March 20 at his new home located in Williamsport. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Richard McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Lote Timmons and son, Mr. and Mrs. James Bareman, all of Columbus; Mr. and Mrs. Reeves Hulse and family of Circleville; Mr. and Mrs. John A. List and family of Pherson and Mr. and Mrs. Webb Steinhauer and family of Williamsport.

Kermit Thomas, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Thomas of Wayne Twp., fell from the tractor on which he was riding and was picked up unconscious. Dr. Howard Jones reported the young man was suffering from a pressure on the brain.

Mrs. E. A. Allen, Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. W. W. Robinson and Miss Nell Weldon, Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, members of the Papyrus Club, attended a dinner at the Neil House, Columbus, featuring Mrs. Inez Haynes Irwin of New York, a noted author, who gave an address on "The Writing Game."

It was believed that an explosion of the oil burner used to heat a brooder at the residence of Paul Reid on E. Mound St. caused the fire that burned the brooder and 125 baby chicks and also destroyed the contents of the building in which the brooder was kept.

George Lincoln Sweyer passed away at his home, 328 E. Mill St., following a short illness. He was the son of H. McMill and Nancy A. Dodd Sweyer, pioneer residents of this city and a carriage painter by trade.

As soon as weather allowed, Amanda officials announced that work would get underway on the paving of Main St. in that village. The street was to be made of brick and extend from the concrete pike east to the west corporation line.

Tax Reform For Singles Pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hopes have been stirred for a limited tax-reform bill this year, helping single persons who long have claimed discrimination and married couples caught in a new quirk of the law.

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee opened up this possibility Monday, while still appearing to stand firm against fellow Democrats' demands for a general loophole-closing measure this election year.

Mills announced a one-day committee hearing April 10 on what he called "the related problems of the tax treatment of single persons and the tax treatment of married persons where both the husband and wife are working."

A provision of the 1969 tax-reform act intended to benefit low- and moderate-income single persons has resulted in imposing on some married couples what critics call a "sin tax."

In certain brackets, a working couple pays more tax than would two single persons with the same incomes. Critics say the provision is a financial incentive to divorce and living together without marriage.

Is it dangerous to take tranquilizers over a long period of time?

Is it possible to become addicted to these drugs?

Miss E. B. A., R. I.

Dear Miss A.:

All drugs that act as tranquilizers, stimulants or psycho-energizers must be taken with extreme care. Their use should be limited to the prescribed amount and the directions set down by the doctor.

All of these drugs are complex chemicals. Therefore, they affect the body and the mind in a number of ways.

Dependence and addiction are different by definition and by fact. One can grow to be dependent on a tranquilizer that accomplishes the purpose for which it was ordered, namely, to relieve tension.

Unfortunately, there are some people who reason in this specious way: They might say, "If one pill is good, then two pills should be better." Or, they might say, "If one pill twice a day is good, then why not one pill four times a day?"

It is by this lack of discipline that the use of drugs can advance to overuse, and finally, to abuse.

Such reckless misuse can be the forerunner of addiction.

Do all impacted teeth have to be removed, even if they don't cause any trouble?

Mr. G. F., La.

Dear Mr. F.: A dentist, particularly interested in this problem, was consulted.

In general, his feeling was that impacted third molars could be left alone in healthy people above the age of 35.

He thought, too, that there may be too great a tendency to suggest removal of these teeth simply because they are present. This is not valid if there are no associated dental problems.

Impacted molars must be kept under observation to be certain that they do not become possible sources of deep infection or the cause of neurological pain.

Occasionally these teeth may be responsible for pressure changes on the adjacent teeth and therefore need extraction.

Obviously these teeth may be responsible for pressure changes on the adjacent teeth and therefore need extraction.

Obviously many factors must be taken into consideration before a decision is made.

The experienced oral surgeon, after study with X-rays and models of the bite, can arrive at the best decision.

How can cracks in the corners of the mouth be prevented?

Mrs. L., N. D.

Dear Mrs. L.: Fissures in the corners of the mouth in the elderly may be the result of poorly fitting dentures. A small amount of saliva may accumulate and be a source of irritation that keeps the cracks open. Vitamin deficiencies are often falsely thought to be the cause of this annoying condition when a far simpler one can be found. Lubrication of the lips and the removal of the basic cause are often the total cure.

Supervising The Supervisors

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
Keeping up with Ralph Nader, the indefatigable tribune for the nation's consumers, is a man-sized task. He is all over the place with recommendations for a score of watchdog propositions, ranging from the idea of Federal licensing of corporations to the creation of raider groups designed to cow any Congressman who might, conceivably in the quite legitimate pursuit of fairness, be inclined to give half an ear to a lobbyist for a producer interest.

Dear Editor:

The United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America fully supports the decision of the AFL-CIO and AUW Executive Boards to withdraw their representatives from the Phase Two Pay Board.

When Nixon announced the wage freeze last August, the UE said that "the labor movement has absolutely no choice but to mount a united struggle to defeat this monstrous attack that the President and the corporations have unleashed on it."

Again, when Phase Two was announced, we publicly stated that it does nothing but continue the Nixon policy of putting the blame and burden of inflation on the working people of America.

Certainly the recent statistics on profit increases in 1971 — the year of the freeze — reveals exactly what the point of the controls has been. The companies control wages but simply pocket the money. According to the Wall Street Journal after tax profits of 464 companies rose 25.3 per cent in the fourth quarter of 1971 from the like $471,800,000, or $143 million

Electric net profits in 1971 were $471,800,000, or $143 million higher than in 1970.

The 58 million workers in private industry are today earning an average weekly wage of $129 or $6,708 per year, which provides them with a bare bone existence, and a real wage that has remained virtually unchanged over the past six years. And although the profits were 30 per cent better than their previous best year, the average annual wages for GE workers are $3,477 short of the Government's moderate budget for an urban family of four.

It is to this imbalance that working people must address themselves, and to the terrible inflationary pressures of military spending and corporate profiteering on that spending.

Since its inception, we have contended that the Pay Board is a deck stacked against the working people.

keeping up with Nader, a critic must reckon with the fact that Naderism has become a sacrosanct cause, like home, mother and apple pie. It is a sure ticket to unpopularity, especially in an election year, to doubt the virtue of a Nader edict.

So why am I sticking my neck out to voice an objection to the Nader-inspired Congressional bill that would create an overall consumer agency with the power to question any decision of the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Communications Commission, the Securities Exchange Commission, etcetera, etcetera?

If the principle of regulation is good, why isn't it a super-good to set up a watchdog body to supervise the regulators?

Well, what bothers me is that if the FTC, the ICC, the NLRB and all the other existing regulatory agencies are incapable of making honest investigations and promulgating sound decisions, a super-agency would soon be vulnerable to the same sort of corruption that afflicts the lesser bodies. If strict government intervention on behalf of the consumer would really protect him, the power is already there; it has recently been affirmed by a Supreme Court decision in a tracing stamp case that gives the Federal Trade Commission a vastly broadened mandate to crack down on commercial practices that may be deemed unfair. If the FTC isn't capable of playing an effective watchdog role, then there must be some inherent reason why no regulatory body will succeed over any two-generation span of time.

It beats me that Ralph Nader, who once commended his home town of Winsted, Conn., for rejecting government-subsidized housing on the ground that it would keep the "market" from delivering better homes for lower costs, can't see that if he is unable to reform the FTC or the ICC, then he would be surely unable to keep a super-agency pure over the years. The "law" of the regulatory agency would seem to be that "adversary advocacy" is soon submerged by a shortsighted community of interest between the regulators and the industries to be regulated. It happened in the case of the ICC, which became a most inept spokesman body for the railroads themselves. We get far better service today from the relatively unregulated trucking industry than we do from the regulated railroads.

The idea of "adversary advocacy" works much better when it operates through the very market place that Nader, since his Winsted days, has come to distrust.

For example, the American motorist is just now showing an interest in radial tires, which European car owners have accepted as being both safer and more economical than the older type tires. Our big tire companies with an expensive capital investment in machinery that will soon be as outdated as the Bessemer furnace, are naturally loathe to make immediate adaptations to a change in taste. But the market will force them to give the consumer what he wants.

The big mailorder house, which is already supplying the radial tire market, is immune to any possible price-cutting reprisals by the standard tire salesmen, for when you sell a vast variety of products to millions of people, as the mailorder house does, you can always meet the competition in any single commodity. Thus the American tire buyer is going to get the best safety tire that can be devised without the help of any Nader-inspired super-regulatory agency.

Ralph Nader is doing a good job as a free lance, utilizing such free-market testing agencies as Consumer's Union to pound home a criticism of a variety of goods and services. Journalism is the proper place for "adversary advocacy," which can only be corrupted if the taxpayer is called upon to pay for it.

Ultimate Expectations Of The Christian Faith

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an age when hope in a transcendent future seems dimmed, a new theological movement has arisen stressing the ultimate expectations of Christian faith. The following article, third in a five-part Easter series, is about that development.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The call of Judeo-Christianity always has been into a larger, still-to-be future, predicated on hope and a promise. It was symbolized of old to Noah: "I do set my bow in the cloud, and it will be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth." It pointed to a brighter day. It disclosed a new horizon.

That rainbow, and further lights along the way, have ever summoned believing generations toward a "promised land," toward a true life, a full time. It is Abraham on the move, called the Israelites to ward freedom, lit the prophecies of Isaiah:

"Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth."

The recurring vision of the "yet-to-come" permeates the Biblical perspective, and in the eyes of Christians, it reaches its highest point in Christ's and resurrection, in which humanity was assured it could share in realizing the greatest goal - an eternal realm of goodness.

Toward that end, its devotees "have turned the world upside down," opponents charged from the first, as related in Acts 17. It is, in essence, a revolutionary doctrine, a spur toward utmost excellence for mankind, the "good fight," St. Paul called it, although some have taken it quiescently. It has long been regarded the "elan vital" of the faith, but some churchmen say it has waned in modern times, and that if it goes, the faith goes down with it.

It is the "central watchword" of Christianity, says Lutheran theologian Carl E. Braaten. The "key to it," says Berman Reformed scholar Jurgen Moltmann, the "mainspring."

"If this horizon should disappear, then the foundation of faith is lost," says Protestant theologian Wolfhart Pannenberg. "It would no longer have any continuity with Jesus and the witness of the apostles."

This is the view of a recently expanding movement in Catholic and Protestant thought called "theology of hope." It seeks to reinforce the lofty, age-old vision in a contemporary era which is seen by some as sagging into a dissipated mood of pointlessness, apathy and nihilism.

"Modern man is asking whether he has been duped by certainty and resignation to pragmatically limited aims, the new evaluation singles out the phenomenon of 'hope,' born of a promised perfection of life, as the central theme of Biblical religion, and the powerful impetus to human aspiration and progress."

The "power of the future," Moltmann calls it. It "causes not rest but unrest, not patience but impatience," he adds. It makes the church a "constant disturbance in human society" by stimulating pursuit of "righteousness, freedom and humanity here in the light of the future that is to come."

The infinite goal cuts across the seeming boundaries of the present, the apparent limits, the cramped, one-dimensional attitudes, the measureable possibilities. It refuses to accept the walled mind closed within its own calculations of fact, and bids man be open to genuine adventure, to the extraordinary, the utterly novel, the seemingly impossible.

"Only a future which is more than a correlative and a projection of our own possibilities can free us for something truly 'new,' for new possibilities, for that which has never been," says Catholic theologian Johannes B. Metz.

However, he notes that such expectancy has declined among modern men, who generally see no prospects beyond themselves and their own devising, and who are bleakly disenchanted by it. Too much of history - and the backfire of technological feats have made solely man-made "utopias" an uneasy dream, the nightmares of nuclear devastation, industrial glut and totalitarian absolutisms.

Yet cynicism is an age-old trait which assumes life is inevitably a dead end, a fixed, confined gambit, about which nothing can really be changed. "There is nothing new under the sun," Ecclesiastes sighed. As the late French atheist Albert Camus saw it, there is no use but "to think clearly and not hope any more."

However, the new theological emphasis takes issue with this negativism and calls a jaded generation back to wonder, to anticipate, to trust in the incalculable amplitude and dependability of reality, to keep their obviously limited impressions and partial knowledge open to the wide vistas of the unknown.

It insists that eternal life is, indeed, a valid human hope, anchored in promise and historically signified.

"The future has already erupted in history in the Christ event," says Braaten, of the University of Chicago Divinity School. "The final end of universal history has been anticipated. It has occurred beforehand."

The "negation of the negatives," Paul Tillich called it.

But so far as the present evidence goes, death seems so overruling and inescapably final that it is kept mostly out of mind, personally, psychologically and socially. However, silence or bravado about it, or flowers, only camouflage it. For everyone, deep down, the loss of loved ones and self is the hardest fact; it shatters, separates, wipes out efforts, plans, capabilities, companionships.

If there is only "being unto death" and nothingness, "the prospect has no power to generate hope," Braaten says.

Man realizes, basically, that the finite limits of earthly existence afford no complete fulfillment, and so his "very nature is to hope beyond death," says German scholar Pannenberg. In his essential being, he knows he always is more than himself. Some element in him, in his intuitions, fears, longings, drive him to push back all frontiers, cross all limits, even the boundary of death.

To live gracefully, man must believe that "the ultimate context of life is succoring and trustworthy," says Presbyterian scholar Sam Keen. Otherwise a person can only "despise the actual and despise who we are," looking at the world through suspicious, distrustful and defensive eyes. Keen adds: "Wishing, willing and hoping are essential to sanity."

However, "hope" theology doesn't rest merely on ague, wishful speculation. "It sets out from a definite reality in history and announces the future of that reality, its future possibilities and its power over the future," Moltmann says.

That fundamental reality, Christ's resurrection, contradicts "experienced reality," Moltmann adds, but this is a paramount point of it to show "the possibility of new experiences," to awaken men to the "hidden future" and to the new "reality that is coming" so that they can "carry the torch before it."

The futuristic orientation is a hallmark of the new theology, countering the common notion that faith focuses on ancient, bygone affairs rather than on present and future concerns. The "promise" came before, but promise always must precede its redeeming in the future.

God Himself is conceived as the "pull of the future," the "God ahead of us," out in front of human history, tugging it on toward greater possibilities, and finally to the eschaton - the final fulfillment of life, the resurrection of the dead and eternal life of righteousness and unhampered creativity.

Notably, the fresh insights derive from the Bible itself and its own consistent stress on the divine will as moving in advance of man's status, always becoming toward a better way, a fuller justice, a gentler community of compassion, brotherhood and peace.

"Thou dost show me the path," the Psalmist sang. The New Testament speaks repeatedly of the "God of promise" the "God of hope."

While emphasizing the ultimate resurrection from death, the "hope" thinkers do not see this final goal as an excuse for giving up the struggle for progress in the present situation, but rather as the prime propulsion for such efforts.

"It is dynamite in the present and dynamism toward the future," Braaten says, adding that it always appears radical because it is never willing to settle for the status quo or for partial solutions. "It is the motor for change in society, a kind of prime mover always in motion."

However, the heavenly hope often has been criticized as deflecting concern from this world and focusing only on the next. A "opiate of the people," Karl Marx labeled it, saying it was used to mollify them about their present plight deterring them from struggling to improve it. However, this truncated view of religion sees it only as "otherworldly," unrelated to human endeavor.

It would make the world a sort of irrelevant "waiting room" until glory day, with believers merely marking time until its arrival. Some Christian groups at times give this impression, including some revivalists, as do many of the modern meditative cults, which regard religion as an escape from "ugly" reality.

"They are not inclined to get involved in the messy struggles for justice as Jesus did," observes Catholic scholar Dennis J. Geaney.

But Biblical religion demanded just that. In Jesus' gospel, "the future and the present are inextricably interwoven," Pannenberg points out. Historical effort is seen as intersecting, eventually, with the transhistorical, in a consummation wrought by God. But the two spheres can't be separated, says Catholic scholar Metz, adding:

"The two dimensions converge in relation to the future." Man's efforts, while always conditional and never flawlessly sufficient, are nevertheless considered essential to, and preparatory for, their final perfection by God.

The future begins with "changing the present," Moltmann puts it. "There can be no transcending the world without transformation of this world, and there can be no transforming of society and the lifestyle within except through transcendence."

It always is the future that moves man to act, not only socially, but individually. Every conscious gesture, every word, every movement and decision, large or trivial, always is directed toward a yet-to-be objective. It may be in the next instant, the next year, or in eternity. But whatever the range, short or far, a man acts under the sway of the future.

Some people cringe from it in what Alvin Toffler calls "future shock," making them want to retreat to the security of a world that has been. Others would shrink the human horizons down to the immediate moment, the instant satisfaction, the technical feasibility, reducing reality to brute facts, drying up the springs of wonder, belief and hope.

The external odds may appear in their favor, that there is no genuine adventure, that we are trapped in a prison of immutable law and inevitable defeat, that there can be only the bird in the hand, and none hidden in the forest beyond. But hope, and the luminous beacon of Christ, proclaims that life does prevail, that the impossible is possible.

As the Greek philosopher Heraclitus put it long ago, "He who does not hope for the unexpected will not find it." (Tomorrow: The Judgement.)

Veteran Offers Burial Plot To Hero Of World War I

SALEM, Ohio (AP) — An Army veteran and foreman at a local house trailer company has offered to give up his burial plot in Arlington National Cemetery so a World War I veteran whose dying wish was to be buried at Arlington can have it.

"I decided he deserves it more than I do," said Robert Silver, who served in World War II and Korea.

Silver has offered his plot for the burial of A. Henry Kauffman who died March 16 at the age of 73. Kauffman's dying request to his son, Jack, was that he be buried with his buddies in Arlington. The Kauffmans live in Miami, Fla.

Kauffman's wish has not been granted—at least not yet—because the Pentagon recently restricted burial at Arlington to those who died on active duty, those retired from military service, winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor and high government officials who are veterans.

Silver said he obtained his plot before the new restrictions went into effect. Fourteen years ago he buried his three-day-old son Robert James in the plot. Silver says if the Kauffmans accept his offer he will bring his son home to a local cemetery.

Kauffman received the Distinguished Service Cross, the second highest award presented to American soldiers, from Gen. John J. Pershing.

He won the award for continuing an artillery barrage against a German position after a German shell hit his battery, wounding him and killing the other seven men in the emplacement.

Silver said he is waiting for a reply from the Kauffmans on his offer. He says he still plans to be buried in Arlington himself if they turn him down.

Silver has three other children, aged 11, 12 and 13.

See New Turn In Yablonski Case; Mrs. Gilly In Hiding

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Washington County Judge Charles Sweet has refused comment on why accused Yablonski family slayer Annette Gilly was taken to Philadelphia last week. But he adds "a lot of people are going to feel very silly when this is all over."

Mrs. Gilly, one of five persons charged in the December 1969 sayings of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, was transported to Philadelphia last Wednesday, under tight security, officials said.

She reportedly was undergoing questioning by authorities. Newspapers here and in Philadelphia reported the sessions were to include lie detector tests.

Neither her attorney, Gerald Gold, nor special prosecutor Richard Sprague, an assistant Philadelphia District Atty., would comment on Mrs. Gilly's Philadelphia journey.

"A lot of people are going to feel very silly when this is all over," Sweet said Monday.

"We're not going to state where she is. Security is still warm and we're not going to announce her day-to-day movements."

"I'm sure there are some people in this world who would like to know if she was going to walk across a street at a certain time," Sweet added. He declined to elaborate.

Mrs. Gilly's trip to Philadelphia, made with Judge Sweet's approval, came after she conferred with Sprague earlier this month. She reportedly was accompanied to Philadelphia by Washington County Sheriff Alex Debreczeni, two prison matrons and a detail of state troopers.

Debreczeni returned to the jail Monday but would not say why Mrs. Gilly had stayed behind in Philadelphia.

"All I can say is she is not in this area," the sheriff said. "She's not been brought back, and I can't comment further."

All I can say is that she's with authorities."

Pet Pig Pals With Family's Canine

REDLAND, Ore. (AP) — Tim Martin, 15, says his 400-pound pet pig thinks he's a dog, pals around with the family dog and "gets upset when he's in a pen with other pigs."

The black and white boar, named Owasso, had a stall at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Martin in Redland just east of Portland, but the stall door is always open and Owasso roams the grounds freely.

Volpe Says Exhibit Costs Worthwhile

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe has responded to allegations that federal funds have been wasted on a federal transit show, saying a success could have a "positive impact" on the U.S. economy and balance of payments.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., had said much of the $5 million Congress paid out for the TRANSPO '72 exhibit has been wasted on luxury hotels, first-class plane fares, $15 dinners and $3,000-a-page memos.

In a letter to Proxmire Monday, Volpe did not answer all of the allegations. However, the secretary pointed to some specific cases and said government regulations were followed.

Volpe said the exhibit, to be held next month at Dulles International Airport near Washington, will show "potential customers the advantages of having us as their transportation hardware suppliers."

Volpe defended William J. Bird, of California, a vice president with Kaiser Industries who is serving as Volpe's special assistant for the exhibit. Proxmire said Bird has been housed at government expense in a $854-a-month suite at the plush Watergate Hotel. Also, the senator said, Bird has made 18 first-class plane trips between Washington and California and a European air tour, costing the government more than $9,000.

Ultimate Expectations Of The Christian Faith

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an age when hope in a transcendent future seems dimmed, a new theological movement has arisen stressing the ultimate expectations of Christian faith. The following article, third in a five-part Easter series, is about that development.

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The call of Judeo-Christianity always has been into a larger, still-to-be future, predicated on hope and a promise. It was symbolized of old to Noah: "I do set my bow in the cloud, and it will be a sign of the covenant between me and the earth." It pointed to a brighter day. It disclosed a new horizon.

That rainbow, and further lights along the way, have ever summoned believing generations toward a "promised land," toward a true life, a full time. It is Abraham on the move, called the Israelites toward freedom, lit the prophecies of Isaiah:

"Behold, I create new heavens and a new earth."

The recurring vision of the "yet-to-come" permeates the Biblical perspective, and in the eyes of Christians, it reaches its highest point in Christ's death and resurrection, in which humanity was assured it could share in realizing the greatest goal - an eternal realm of goodness.

Toward that end, its devotees "have turned the world upside down," opponents charged from the first, as related in Acts 17.

It is, in essence, a revolutionary doctrine, a spur toward utmost excellence for mankind, the "good fight," St. Paul called it, although some have taken it quiescently. It has long been regarded the "elan vital" of the faith, but some churchmen say it has waned in modern times, and that if it goes, the faith goes down with it.

It is the "central watchword" of Christianity, says Lutheran theologian Carl E. Braaten. The "key to it," says Berman R. Formed scholar Jurgen Moltmann, the "mainspring." "If this horizon should disappear, then the foundation of faith is lost," says Protestant theologian Wolfhart Pannenberg. "It would no longer have any continuity with Jesus and the witness of the apostles."

This is the view of a recently expanding movement in Catholic and Protestant thought called "theology of hope." It seeks to reinforce the lofty, age-old vision in a contemporary era which is seen by some as sagging into a dissipated mood of pointlessness, apathy and nihilism.

"Modern man is asking whether he has been duped by certainty and resignation to pragmatically limited aims, the new evaluation singles out the phenomenon of 'hope,' born of a promised perfection of life, as the central theme of Biblical religion, and the powerful impetus to human aspiration and progress.

The "power of the future," Moltmann calls it.

"It causes not rest but unrest, not patience but impatience," he adds. It makes the church a "constant disturbance in human society" by stimulating pursuit of "righteousness, freedom and humanity here in the light of the future that is to come."

The infinite goal cuts across the seeming boundaries of the present, the apparent limits, the cramped, one-dimensional attitudes, the measureable possibilities. It refuses to accept the walled mind closed within its own calculations of fact, and bids man be open to genuine adventure, to the extraordinary, the utterly novel, the seemingly impossible.

"Only a future which is more than a correlative and a projection of our own possibilities can free us for something truly 'new,' for new possibilities, for that which has never been," says Catholic theologian Johannes B. Metz.

However, he notes that such expectancy has declined among modern men, who generally see no prospects beyond themselves and their own devising, and who are bleakly disenchanted by it. Too much of history - and the backfire of technological feats have made solely man-made "utopias" an uneasy dream, the nightmares of nuclear devastation, industrial glut and totalitarian absolutisms.

Yet cynicism is an age-old trait which assumes life is inevitably a dead end, a fixed, confined gambit, about which nothing can really be changed. "There is nothing new under the sun," Ecclesiastes sighed. As the late French atheist Albert Camus saw it, there is no use but "to think clearly and not hope any more."

However, the new theological emphasis takes issue with this negativism and calls a jaded generation back to wonder, to anticipate, to trust in the incalculable amplitude and dependability of reality, to keep their obviously limited impressions and partial knowledge open to the wide vistas of the unknown.

It insists that eternal life is, indeed, a valid human hope, anchored in promise and historically signified.

"The future has already erupted in history in the Christ event," says Braaten, of the University of Chicago Divinity School. "The final end of universal history has been anticipated. It has occurred beforehand."

The "negation of the negatives," Paul Tillich called it.

But so far as the present evidence goes, death seems so overruling and inescapably final that it is kept mostly out of mind, personally, psychologically and socially. However, silence or bravado about it, or flowers, only camouflage it. For everyone, deep down, the loss of loved ones and self is the hardest fact; it shatters, separates, wipes out efforts, plans, capabilities, companionships.

If there is only "being unto death" and nothingness, "the prospect has no power to generate hope," Braaten says.

Man realizes, basically, that the finite limits of earthly existence afford no complete fulfillment, and so his "very nature is to hope beyond death," says German scholar Pannenberg. In his essential being, he knows he always is more than himself. Some element in him, in his intuitions, fears, longings, drive him to push back all frontiers, cross all limits, even the boundary of death.

To live gracefully, man must believe that "the ultimate context of life is succoring and trustworthy," says Presbyterian scholar Sam Keen. Otherwise a person can only "despise the actual and despise who we are," looking at the world through suspicious, distrustful and defensive eyes. Keen adds: "Wishing, willing and hoping are essential to sanity."

However, "hope" theology doesn't rest merely on agree, wishful speculation.

"It sets out from a definite reality in history and announces the future of that reality, its future possibilities and its power over the future," Moltmann says.

That fundamental reality, Christ's resurrection, contradicts "experienced reality," Moltmann adds, but this is a paramount point of it to show "the possibility of new experiences," to awaken men to the "hidden future" and to the new "reality that is coming" so that they can "carry the torch before it."

The futuristic orientation is a hallmark of the new theology, countering the common notion that faith focuses on ancient, bygone affairs rather than on present and future concerns. The "promise" came before, but promise always must precede its redeeming in the future.

God Himself is conceived as the "pull of the future," the "God ahead of us," out in front of human history, tugging it on toward greater possibilities, and finally to the eschaton - the final fulfillment of life, the resurrection of the dead and eternal life of righteousness and unhampered creativity.

Notably, the fresh insights derive from the Bible itself and its own consistent stress on the divine will as moving in advance of man's status, always becoming toward a better way, a fuller justice, a gentler community of compassion, brotherhood and peace.

"Thou dost show me the path," the Psalmist sang. The New Testament speaks repeatedly of the "God of promise" the "God of hope."

While emphasizing the ultimate resurrection from death, the "hope" thinkers do not see this final goal as an excuse for giving up the struggle for progress in the present situation, but rather as the prime propulsion for such efforts.

"It is dynamite in the present and dynamism toward the future," Braaten says, adding that it always appears radical because it is never willing to settle for the status quo or for partial solutions. "It is the motor for change in society, a kind of prime mover always in motion."

However, the heavenly hope often has been criticized as deflecting concern from this world and focusing only on the next. A "opiate of the people," Karl Marx labeled it, saying it was used to mollify them about their present plight deterring them from struggling to improve it. However, this truncated view of religion sees it only as "otherworldly," unrelated to human endeavor.

It would make the world a sort of irrelevant "waiting room" until glory day, with believers merely marking time until its arrival. Some Christian groups at times give this impression, including some revivalists, as do many of the modern meditative cults, which regard religion as an escape from "ugly" reality.

"They are not inclined to get involved in the messy struggles for justice as Jesus did," observes Catholic scholar Dennis J. Geaney.

But Biblical religion demanded just that. In Jesus' gospel, "the future and the present are inextricably interwoven," Pannenberg points out. Historical effort is seen as intersecting, eventually, with the transhistorical, in a consummation wrought by God. But the two spheres can't be separated, says Catholic scholar Metz, adding:

"The two dimensions converge in relation to the future." Man's efforts, while always conditional and never flawlessly sufficient, are nevertheless considered essential to, and preparatory for, their final perfection by God.

The future begins with "changing the present," Moltmann puts it. "There can be no transcending the world without transformation of this world, and there can be no transforming of society and the lifestyle within except through transcendence."

It always is the future that moves man to act, not only socially, but individually. Every conscious gesture, every word, every movement and decision, large or trivial, always is directed toward a yet-to-be

See New Turn In Yablonski Case; Mrs. Gilly In Hiding

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP) — Washington County Judge Charles Sweet has refused comment on why accused Yablonski family slayer Annette Gilly was taken to Philadelphia last week. But he adds "a lot of people are going to feel very silly when this is all over."

Mrs. Gilly, one of five persons charged in the December 1969 sayings of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph "Joey" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, was transported to Philadelphia last Wednesday, under tight security, officials said.

She reportedly was undergoing questioning by authorities. Newspapers here and in Philadelphia reported the sessions were to include lie detector tests.

Neither her attorney, Gerald Gold, nor special prosecutor Richard Sprague, an assistant Philadelphia District Atty., would comment on Mrs. Gilly's Philadelphia journey.

"A lot of people are going to feel very silly when this is all over," Sweet said Monday.

"We're not going to state where she is. Security is still warm and we're not going to announce her day-to-day movements."

"I'm sure there are some people in this world who would like to know if she was going to walk across a street at a certain time," Sweet added. He declined to elaborate.

Mrs. Gilly's trip to Philadelphia, made with Judge Sweet's approval, came after she conferred with Sprague earlier this month. She reportedly was accompanied to Philadelphia by Washington County Sheriff Alex Debrezeni, two prison matrons and a detail of state troopers.

Debrezeni returned to the jail Monday but would not say why Mrs. Gilly had stayed behind in Philadelphia.

"All I can say is she is not in this area," the sheriff said. "She's not been brought back, and I can't comment further. All I can say is that she's with authorities."

Pet Pig Pals With Family's Canine

REDLAND, Ore. (AP) — Tim Martin, 15, says his 400-pound pet pig thinks he's a dog, pals around with the family dog and "gets upset when he's in a pen with other pigs."

The black and white boar, named Owasso, had a stall at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Martin in Redland just east of Portland, but the stall door is always open and Owasso roams the grounds freely.

Veteran Offers Burial Plot To Hero Of World War I

SALEM, Ohio (AP) — An Army veteran and foreman at a local house trailer company has offered to give up his burial plot in Arlington National Cemetery so a World War I veteran whose dying wish was to be buried at Arlington can have it.

"I decided he deserves it more than I do," said Robert Silver, who served in World War II and Korea.

Silver has offered his plot for the burial of A. Henry Kauffman who died March 15 at the age of 73. Kauffman's dying request to his son, Jack, was that he be buried with his buddies in Arlington. The Kauffmans live in Miami, Fla.

Kauffman's wish has not been granted—at least not yet—because the Pentagon recently restricted burial at Arlington to those who died on active duty, those retired from military service, winners of the Congressional Medal of Honor and high government officials who are veterans.

Silver said he obtained his plot before the new restrictions went into effect. Fourteen years ago he buried his three-day-old son Robert James in the plot. Silver says if the Kauffmans accept his offer he will bring his son home to a local cemetery.

Kauffman received the Distinguished Service Cross, the second highest award presented to American soldiers, from Gen. John J. Pershing.

He won the award for continuing an artillery barrage against a German position after a German shell hit his battery, wounding him and killing the other seven men in the emplacement.

Silver said he is waiting for a reply from the Kauffmans on his offer. He says he still plans to be buried in Arlington himself if they turn him down.

Silver has three other children, aged 11, 12 and 13.

Celebrate Easter With Traditional Egg Bread

By ALICE DENHOFF

Through the years there have been established food traditions associated with specific holidays. The Christmas plum pudding, the Thanksgiving turkey and, of course, the many personal family recipes that have passed down through generations.

There are traditional foods associated with Easter, too — Easter eggs, lamb and ham. Then there is the "Easter Egg Bread," a traditional food combining bread (the staff of life) and eggs, which have long been a religious symbol. The Easter significance is also evident in the crosses that are formed on the bread by strips of the bread dough.

When baked, the loaves are a deep golden brown and the raw eggs pressed into the recipe are perfectly hard-cooked. The eggs are served right along with the bread for Easter brunch or breakfast. Takes time and effort, but worth it.

EASTER EGG BREAD

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry.
1 cup milk
1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 to 7 cups flour
3 eggs
6 raw eggs, in shell
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon water
Candy decorates

Dissolve yeast in warm water.

Heat milk until almost simmering, stir in butter until melted. Measure sugar and salt into large mixing bowl. Stir in milk mixture until sugar dissolves. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 2 cups of flour; beat until smooth. Beat in yeast and 3 eggs. Stir in additional flour (4 to 5 cups) to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny, 15 to 20 minutes.

Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl, turning to grease on all sides. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 2 hours. Punch down. Divide dough in half; shape each half into ball. Let rest 10 minutes.

To form round loaf, remove a ball of dough, about 2 inches in diameter from one ball of dough and reserve smaller ball. Divide remaining dough from large ball into thirds; shape each third into strips about 18 inches long. Braid strips loosely together; tuck ends under and fit into greased 4 1/2 x 8 1/2-inch loaf pan.

Divide small ball into fourths; shape each fourth into strip 6 inches long. Wrap each of 2 raw eggs with 2 strips of dough, forming a cross. Tuck eggs into braid. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour.

To form round loaf, remove a ball of dough about 3 inches in diameter from remaining dough and reserve. Divide dough from large ball into thirds.

Shape each third into strips 24 inches long. Braid strips loosely together; place in greased 8-inch round cake pan. Tuck ends together to form continuous braid. Divide each small ball into eighths. Shape each eighth into strip 6 inches long. Wrap each of 4 raw eggs with 2 inches of dough, forming a cross. Tuck eggs into braid. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Blend together 1 egg and 1 tablespoon water; brush tops of braids with mixture. Sprinkle loaves with candy decorates. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 35 to 40 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from pan; place on wire racks. Cool thoroughly before serving.

Now for an easy one, a supper dish that is delicious and a real quick 'n' easy. It's a nice choice for Easter Sunday supper, for although nourishing it is light. What is it? Well, it's a:

SUPER SUNSHINE SOUFFLE

1 can (10 1/2 ozs.) cream of mushroom soup
1 cup Grated American cheese
6 egg yolks, well beaten
6 egg whites

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Set a 2 1/2-quart ungreased casserole in a shallow baking pan; place in oven. Pour boiling water around casserole to depth of at least 1 inch. Let casserole heat while souffle is prepared.

Combine soup and cheese in saucepan; heat thoroughly over low heat until cheese is melted. Slowly add hot soup mixture to beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites until stiff and glossy, but not dry. Slowly and gently fold beaten egg whites into yolk mixture. Pour into hot casserole. Circle mixture with a spoon about 1 inch deep to form a "crown." Bake until puffy, delicately browned, and when a silver knife inserted halfway between center and outside edge, comes out clean, about 1 hour. Should be served at once.

Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Taft Challenge To GOP Leader May Split Party

CINCINNATI (AP) — A heated intraparty fight is emerging over U.S. Sen. Robert Taft's challenge of Hamilton County Chairman Earl Barnes for a seat on the Ohio Republican Central Committee.

Taft, in a salvo Tuesday, said a vote for him in the May primary would indicate a vote for "reform" of the Hamilton County GOP organization.

Taft further criticized the state party organization.

"We have lost ground to the Democrats in each of our last three elections," and present leadership seems incapable of reversing this trend.

Through the years there have been established food traditions associated with Easter, too — the Christmas plum pudding, the Thanksgiving turkey and, of course, the many personal family recipes that have passed down through generations.

There are traditional foods associated with Easter, too — Easter eggs, lamb and ham. Then there is the "Easter Egg Bread," a traditional food combining bread (the staff of life) and eggs, which have long been a religious symbol. The Easter significance is also evident in the crosses that are formed on the bread by strips of the bread dough.

When baked, the loaves are a deep golden brown and the raw eggs pressed into the recipe are perfectly hard-cooked. The eggs are served right along with the bread for Easter brunch or breakfast. Takes time and effort, but worth it.

EASTER EGG BREAD

2 packages yeast, compressed or dry.
1 1/4 cup warm water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup butter
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 to 7 cups flour
3 eggs
6 raw eggs, in shell
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 tablespoon water
Candy decorations

Dissolve yeast in warm water. Heat milk until almost simmering, stir in butter until melted. Measure sugar and salt into large mixing bowl. Stir in milk mixture until sugar dissolves. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 2 cups of flour; beat until smooth. Beat in yeast and 3 eggs. Stir in additional flour (4 to 5 cups) to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board or pastry cloth and knead until smooth and satiny, 15 to 20 minutes.

Shape into ball and place in lightly greased bowl, turning to grease on all sides. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 2 hours. Punch down. Divide dough in half; shape each half into ball. Let rest 10 minutes.

To form round loaf, remove a ball of dough, about 2 inches in diameter from one ball of dough and reserve smaller ball. Divide remaining dough from large ball into thirds; shape each third into strips about 18 inches long. Braid strips loosely together; tuck ends under and fit into greased 4 1/2 x 8 1/2-inch loaf pan.

Divide small ball into fourths; shape each fourth into strip 6 inches long. Wrap each of 2 raw eggs with 2 strips of dough, forming a cross. Tuck eggs into braid. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour.

To form round loaf, remove a ball of dough about 3 inches in diameter from remaining dough and reserve. Divide dough from large ball into thirds.

Shape each third into strips 24 inches long. Braid strips loosely together; place in greased 8-inch round cake pan. Tuck ends together to form continuous braid. Divide each small ball into eighths. Shape each eighth into strip 6 inches long. Wrap each of 4 raw eggs with 2 inches of dough, forming a cross. Tuck eggs into braid. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1 hour. Blend together 1 egg and 1 tablespoon water; brush tops of braids with mixture. Sprinkle loaves with candy decorations. Bake in 350 degree F. oven 35 to 40 minutes, or until golden brown. Remove from pan; place on wire racks. Cool thoroughly before serving.

Now for an easy one, a supper dish that is delicious and a real quick 'n' easy. It's a nice choice for Easter Sunday supper, for although nourishing it is light. What is it? Well, it's a:

SUPER SUNSHINE SOUFFLE

1 can (10 1/2 ozs.) cream of mushroom soup
1 cup Grated American cheese
6 egg yolks, well beaten
6 egg whites

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Set a 2 1/2-quart ungreased casserole in a shallow baking pan; place in oven. Pour boiling water around casserole to depth of at least 1 inch. Let casserole heat while souffle is prepared.

Combine soup and cheese in saucepan; heat thoroughly over low heat until cheese is melted. Slowly add hot soup mixture to beaten egg yolks. Beat egg whites until stiff and glossy, but not dry. Slowly and gently fold beaten egg whites into yolk mixture. Pour into hot casserole. Circle mixture with a spoon about 1 inch deep to form a "crown." Bake until puffy, delicately browned, and when a silver knife inserted halfway between center and outside edge, comes out clean, about 1 hour. Should be served at once.

Makes 5 to 6 servings.

Taft Challenge To GOP Leader May Split Party

CINCINNATI (AP) — A heated intraparty fight is emerging over U.S. Sen. Robert Taft's challenge of Hamilton County Chairman Earl Barnes for a seat on the Ohio Republican Central Committee.

Taft, in a salvo Tuesday, said a vote for him in the May primary would indicate a vote for "reform" of the Hamilton County GOP organization.

Taft further criticized the state party organization.

"We have lost ground to the Democrats in each of our last three elections," and present leadership seems incapable of reversing this trend.

Water-Pollution-Control Bill Action Expected In House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Final House action was expected today on a $24.6-billion water-pollution-control bill aimed at cleaning up the nation's waterways by 1981.

Environmentalists lost ground Tuesday as the House voted down a series of amendments proposed to toughen the legislation. Although the environmental backers were never sure of victory, the losses were more than expected.

Berrigan Arguments Continue

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The prosecution says the Rev. Philip Berrigan abandoned his nonviolent antiwar stance as "the priest of peace" to plot the kidnapping of White House aide Henry A. Kissinger. Denying it, the Harrisburg seven defense insists there's nothing but "loud thunder" and "fantasy" to the federal conspiracy case.

"The exchange of two letters was where it was born, and there it died," defense lawyer Paul O'Dwyer said Tuesday, referring to correspondence between Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister that proposed the Kissinger scheme as a major new way to protest the Vietnam war.

While the lawyers continue to trade final summations today inside the courtroom, supporters of the defendants planned a symbolic Holy Week blockade of the entrances outside the federal building.

O'Dwyer said of the kidnap plot, "There is not a single scintilla of evidence that it ever was promoted further. It fell of its own weight... pure fantasy... ridiculous."

But William Connelly, the assistant prosecutor, laid a different interpretation on the 1970 plan—purportedly abandoned after its disclosure by the FBI—claiming the defendants "wanted to do it before others did it."

One major amendment, setting 1981 as the deadline for industries to adopt the "best available technology" to treat wastes discharged into waterways, was defeated 248 to 140.

The amendment would have brought the bill in line with the clean-water rules already passed in the Senate. Its defeat leaves the House bill with 1981 as a goal and not as a deadline. Even that would be subject to a federal study and a further vote by Congress.

The Senate version would not require a second congressional vote.

Rep. Sidney Zion, R-Ind., argued that such an inflexible deadline could cost nearly $2 trillion and thousands of jobs.

Another major amendment defeated Tuesday would have continued authority for the Environmental Protection Agency to issue waste-discharge permits to industries. It was voted down 251 to 114.

Both House and Senate versions transfer this authority to the states, although the Senate bill would allow EPA veto power over individual approvals.

Both defeated amendments were sponsored by Reps. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., and John Dingell, D-Mich.

The main points of the Senate bill would have industries using the best pollution-control devices on discharge systems by 1981, with a total halt to discharges by 1985.

The House measure would authorize the $24.6 billion to be spent on construction grants, research, and loans to small business which cannot afford the cost of cleanup to meet the federal standards.

Kiwanis Plans Easter Egg Hunt Saturday

The Kiwanis Club of Circleville will welcome all children from two years through 10 to an Easter Egg hunt 9 a.m. Saturday at Ted Lewis Park.

Parents are invited to watch, but not to participate, as the children separate into four age groups to search for 2,500 eggs, 136 of them prize eggs.

Kiwanis members and Key Clubbers will supervise the hunt. Parents are asked to bring their children to the starting lines but wait for the signal of the supervisor before joining in the hunt.

Children ages two, three and four will be searching for eggs on the playground end of the park from the swimming pool to Hargus Creek and the railroad tracks.

Children five and six years of age will be searching for eggs in the area of the tennis courts, bounded by the alley, Rosewood Drive, the basketball courts and the swimming pool parking lot.

Children seven and eight years of age will have an area from the main shelter house south to the dividing road, including the little league baseball diamond.

Children nine and 10 years old will have an area north of the main shelter house, including the pony league and baseball diamond.

Prison Guards Report For Duty; Operation Normal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — With a sick-call strike by guards apparently over, Ohio Penitentiary officials were making preparations today for resuming normal operations at the old facility.

Corrections Commissioner Bennett Cooper said a timetable was being worked out for releasing prisoners from their cells and resuming work details.

The guards, who had been protesting lack of hazard pay, began returning to their jobs Tuesday after the state cracked down, firing 14 for being absent without leave and telling 143 others they must prove they were absent legitimately.

A full complement of 135 guards reported for work on the Tuesday night shift. A total of 153 reported for the day shift, 44 less than the number scheduled.

Nixon Briefed On Russia Cuba Tie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preparations for President Nixon's May summit conference in Moscow include a thorough review of the Soviet Union's military activities in Cuba, according to Pentagon sources.

The review centers, the sources say, on the continuing series of Soviet ship movements in the Caribbean. Soviet ships have been using the Cuban port of Cienfuegos for vessel-servicing and crew recreation.

Nixon has said publicly Cuba might be a subject at the Moscow talks.

He has come under pressure from some Democrats and from some officials within his administration to take a stronger stand against the Soviet military presence in the Caribbean.

Some U.S. officials say the Soviet presence is more important to Moscow for political and psychological reasons than for its military implications, although the latter also is recognized.

There is some speculation here that the Kremlin would like to see the United States and Cuba move toward a more nearly normal relationship.

It is said the Soviets believe that only through a U.S.-Cuba detente would the Fidel Castro regime be able to expand its diplomatic contacts within the hemispheric community because the area is still basically U.S.-oriented.

A major obstacle to Moscow's reported goal of encouraging broadened Cuban representation in Latin America may be Castro himself, many believe.

Castro made it known late last year he is no longer inflexibly opposed to moving toward a normal relationship with the United States, but in recent weeks there has been a marked increase in the level of anti-American propaganda disseminated by Cuba's official media.

One source suggested the reason is that Castro may have realized "the impossibility of a thaw in relations during an election year in the United States."

The prospect of a U.S. overture toward Castro has been ruled out by Nixon administration political strategists on grounds the conservative wing of the Republican party already is alienated by the Peking and Moscow summit talks and possibly would withdraw its support for Nixon if the detente spirit were extended to Havana as well.

Claim Police In Chicago Gun-Happy

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department is undisciplined as to the use of weapons and a survey shows three times more persons are killed by police in Chicago than in the three other largest American cities, a private study group reports.

Marshall Pater, chairman of the Chicago Law Enforcement Study Group, told a news conference Tuesday that Chicago "has a trigger-happy society of policemen."

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association, an organization of rank-and-file policemen, took issue with the report, saying in a statement that the figures failed to point out how many of the deaths occurred due to an aggravated felony.

The association's statement said one of the reasons for the figures was "aggressive police work" responsible for Chicago's low rate.

The research group, a joint project of Northwestern University Center for Urban Affairs and a dozen community organizations, obtained comparative data from an International Association of Police Chiefs survey. It also made an independent two-year study.

The IAPC survey showed that from July 1970 to March 1971 there were 32 police killings in Chicago compared with 21 in New York, 13 in Philadelphia, 8 in Los Angeles and 4 in Detroit. On a population ratio, Chicago had three times as many slayings as New York, Detroit and Los Angeles and 1.5 times as many as Philadelphia.

Pay Board Member Raps Meany

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP) — William Caples, president of Kenyon College and a member of the Pay Board, says "political reasons" were behind the resignation of AFL-CIO President George Meany from the Pay Board.

"It's perfectly obvious he (Meany) wants another fellow sitting at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. (the White House)," Caples said in an interview published in today's Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Caples was quoted as saying he is considering quitting the Pay Board because of changes forced by the walkout of Meany and other labor members.

He said Meany's political concerns may have involved his AFL-CIO job, which is an elective post, as well as national politics.

"If he wants to stay as head of the union, he probably had no choice, but to quit," said Caples, adding that he thought Meany would have trouble getting re-elected AFL-CIO president if he had stayed on a board which held down wages while the Price Commission was not holding down prices.

Caples said the smaller, seven-member board constituted by President Nixon after the labor walkout may lose public confidence because of what he called a narrower composition of the board.

He also questioned the future effectiveness of the board if the Price Commission is not more successful.

"I hear about the Price Commission's lack of success every time my wife comes home from the market," he said.

The Kenyon president said he expects to make a decision within two weeks on whether to stay on the pay board.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Howard Lemaster, Mike Hegarty, Becky Haddox, in memory — Jack Hanson, April 1; Ronald Bush, Troy McPherson, Ben Angles, April 2; Luann Gifford, Charlyn Fuller, April 3; Dana Brigner, in memory of our beloved pap — Earl Hardman, April 4; Gerry Christopher, Mrs. Russell (Esther) Wardell, Tammy Coey, Paul Schein, champion tractor puller Linden Gibson, April 5; Booby Whaley, Ralph D. Smith, April Neff, Shirley Streitenberger, Tami Garrison, Merle Monroe, Sue Scribner, April 6; Keith Garrison, April 7; Ebb Lemaster, Patty Schein, Jimmy Akison, Cathy Welsh, Lloyd Grabbill, Delray Snyder, Sue Mason, Bob Perry, Jodie Hulse, April 8; LuAnn Howell, Dannie Easter, Ed Conrad, April 9.

We had a truly international community a week ago for three or four days. A.F.S. (American Field Service) students who are in the Cleveland area came to this county through the efforts of Mrs. Robert (Margaret) Barnes.

Two students were with families at Logan Elm and it was our pleasure (Fernando and this writer) to meet these two young ladies on Friday. Principal Dow West kindly invited us to be guests at the school especially so Fernando and Yolanda Zevallos (native of Bolivia, South America) might converse in their native Espanol tongue. The interesting part was that they had each been in this country long enough and practiced the English language that oftentimes they started to speak Spanish and lapsed into English. The Tom Conrads (Tom, Anna Mae and Linda) offered the hospitality of their home to the student from Thailand, Miss Chanintorin (Nuy) Sopon.

Bo and Marbareet Barnes and sons hosted Ken O'Connor from near Melbourne, Australia with an able assist from Steve Wynn (the boy next door) who intro'd Ken to the "kids" at Westfall. On Saturday night Steve, Ken, Fernando Chuck Graffis and our Marc pitched a tent and camped out complete with wiener roast and the "whole gig". On Saturday afternoon the boys engaged in a game of basketball at the Hamman course with Tom Hamman, his friend Bob Forbes visiting for the week-end from Marietta and young Bill Hamman. Ken enjoyed every minute of his time here.

Creative Arts Festival

Using the theme, Red, White, Blue and You, the Home Economics, Art and English departments at Westfall presented a truly delightful evening last Thursday. The auditorium stage was draped with bunting and the curtains were partially drawn to reveal a backdrop of those symbols held dear in the hearts of all good Americans, the eagle and silhouettes of Washington and Lincoln.

An impressive color guard comprised of Rick Metzger, Chuck Kennedy, Mike Puckett and Chuck Steinhauser posted the colors and the Westfall Chorus then sang, "America, the Beautiful". A cleverly written narration paraphrasing the Declaration of Independence, Gettysburg Address, Bill of Rights and so forth was the means by which each model presented her creation to the appreciative audience. Miss Cheryl Miller was an excellent narrator.

Carol Clem modeled a jumper outfit; long dresses were the efforts of Nellie Jo Williams, Stephanie Francis, JoAnne Blankenship and Becky Haddox; hot pants made the scene via Bev McDill, Sherrie Dountz, Gerri Dowdy, Mary Jo Carle; the one and only bathing suit was Elyse Rhinesmith's; popular pant suits and pants were seen by Lura Christensen, Donna Musselman, Bev Trent, Diane Overly, Pam Williams, Donna Fullen, Cindy Hamman, Debbie Webb, Mary Smith, LeAnn Bauer, Normalee Rowland, Jackie Leasure, Laura Jude, Vicki Stoer, Becky Beauman, Diana Morrison, Susie Easter, Cheryl Sines, Judy Grabbill; jumpsuits were done by Jackie Houser, Barbara Lanman, Patty Bradshaw, Gai Underwood.

Showing skill on vests and skirts were Cindy Wolfe, Terry Christensen, Cheryl Graham, Debbie Seymour, Alma Lewis; breathtaking coats were created by Judy Schein, Christy Hanson, Debbie Keaton, Loretta Long, Bonnie Bailey, Bev Lance; modeling dresses were Debbie Hulse (2), Sheila Wiseman, Darlene Barney, Robbie Liff, Hazel Caudy, Vickie Christopher, Mary McNeal, Sally Mace, Linda Drummond, Mary Musselman, Phyllis Kuhn, Lori Ellison, Connie Drummond, Jane Schein, Brenda Streitenberger, Ellie Linton, Kay Lewis, Lila Bennington, Janet Hastings, Mandy Russell.

In between each category a musical selection and/or comedy line entertained. Following the style show, a beautifully gowned Nanisa Anderson took to the rostrum and announced the winners of the Art show as 2-D: Grand Prize, Bill Blaney, Leslie Fyffe, first; Connie Shaeffer, second; Charlyn Fuller, third; Sherri Covault, Joyce Stevens, Teresa Conley, honorable mention; 3-D (Paper): Grand prize, Charlyn Fuller; Barb Stonerock, first; Jeri Henson, second; Miscellaneous 3-D: Grand Prize, Diana Morrison; Sherri Covault, first, Tom Eitel, second; Mike Hegarty, third. Judging for the Art was done by members of the Circleville Art League, Gloria Snodgrass, Audrey Turner and Lisa Yaple. Joyce Stevens served as program chairman.

Next on the agenda Nanisa announced the winners of the Creative Writing Contest, these being: Short Story, Doug Rogers, first; Tim Hegarty, second; Debra Bowsher, third; Essay, Stephanie Garland, first and second; Long Poem Division, Susie Easter, first; Jeri Hensen, second; Nancy Dean, third; Bev Wilkey, honorable mention; Short Poem, Cathy Alkire, first; Chris Hansen, second; Janie Griffith, third; Claire Hanse, honorable mention; Concret Poem, Becky Easterday, first; Cindy Dawson, second; Jeri Henson, third; Haiku, John Jacobs, first; Robert Stone, second; Rick Stonerock, third. Word Cu quain: Rick Stonerock, first; Mary Karn, second; Cindy Hamman, honorable mention; Syllable Cu quain, Terry Christensen, first; Jan Ellison, second. To conclude the evening the chorus reded "God Bless America" and finale "Star Spangled Banner."

The Art and Creative Writing works were displayed in the hallway and bulletin boards in a very effective manner. Judges for the writing contest were Miss Meg Bower and Mr. Walter Sale of the Circleville High School English Dept. Many thanks must go to the always hard working instructors in Home Economics, Mrs. Vance, Mrs. Smith; in Art, Miss Montelius and in English, Mrs. Radcliff, Mrs. Roush, Mrs. Baker, and Mr. Bolman.

Band Glass Drive

Remember to set aside for collection all your normally thrown away bottles, jars and what have you for the Westfall Band glass drive. Also remember to rinse them out and remove any metal — makes no never mind about the labels. So far, deposit sights established where you can dump your old glass are at Easterday Welding Shop (three barrels to the north side), band director Jim Kibby's residence on the Circleville-Commercial Point Road, Lawrence and Dorothy Carle residence on Alkire Road, Gloria Curry's home at Clark's Lake, Melody Morrison's home at Five Points. If you are unable to take your glass to either of these locations please feel welcome to contact any band member and arrangements can be made for pick-up. Date of total collection will be Saturday, April 15.

What a beautiful way to improve our ecology and increment the band treasury, which money goes to aid the band in attending band camp, purchase music and many other much needed necessities. Don't let it pass — save that glass!

FIREMEN'S DANCE

The Williamsport Volunteer Fire Dept. plans to host a benefit dance on Sat., April 8, at the Sulphur Springs Pavilion. Your attendance is most desired.

The presence of blonde, sunshiny little Miss Sherry Horch brightened our midst on Friday evening when she overnighted with daughter Amy.

Have you sent that birthday card to Mrs. Phoebe Smiley who will attain the marvelous age of ninety-eight years on Good Friday? Send it without delay! Please?

Think About It: Insincerity is one of the lowest forms of deceit.

Latest scoop from the Westfall hot line is the list of students who were tapped today (Tuesday) for the National Honor Society and they are:

Seniors: Becky Beauman, Sheryl Covault, Lynn Dennis, Linda Fausnaugh, Barbara Justus, Chuck Kennedy, Barbara Lanman, Carla Liston, Kim Long, Donna Musselman, Ann Straley, Jan Thompson, Leslie Williams, Monica Yates.

Claim Police In Chicago Gun-Happy

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago police department is undisciplined as to the use of weapons and a survey shows three times more persons are killed by police in Chicago than in the three other largest American cities, a private study group reports.

Marshall Patner, chairman of the Chicago Law Enforcement Study Group, told a news conference Tuesday that Chicago "has a trigger-happy society of policemen."

The Chicago Patrolmen's Association, an organization of rank-and-file policemen, took issue with the report, saying in a statement that the figures failed to point out how many of the deaths occurred due to an aggravated felony.

The association's statement said one of the reasons for the figures was "aggressive police work" responsible for Chicago's low crime rate.

The research group, a joint project of Northwestern University Center for Urban Affairs and a dozen community organizations, obtained comparative data from an International Association of Police Chiefs survey. It also made an independent two-year study.

The IAPC survey showed that from July 1970 to March 1971, there were 32 police killings in Chicago compared with 21 in New York, 13 in Philadelphia, 8 in Los Angeles and 4 in Detroit. On a population ratio, Chicago had three times as many slayings as New York, Detroit and Los Angeles and 1.5 times as many as Philadelphia.

Pay Board Member Raps Meany

GAMBIER, Ohio (AP) — William Caples, president of Kenyon College and a member of the Pay Board, says "political reasons" were behind the resignation of AFL-CIO President George Meany from the Pay Board.

"It's perfectly obvious he (Meany) wants another fellow sitting at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. (the White House)," Caples said in an interview published in today's Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Caples was quoted as saying he is considering quitting the Pay Board because of changes forced by the walkout of Meany and other labor members.

He said Meany's political concerns may have involved his AFL-CIO job, which is an elective post, as well as national politics.

"If he wants to stay as head of the union, he probably had no choice, but to quit," said Caples, adding that he thought Meany would have trouble getting re-elected AFL-CIO president if he had stayed on a board which held down wages while the Price Commission was not holding down prices.

Caples said the smaller, seven-member board constituted by President Nixon after the labor walkout may lose public confidence because of what he called a narrower composition of the board.

He also questioned the future effectiveness of the board if the Price Commission is not more successful.

"I hear about the Price Commission's lack of success every time my wife comes home from the market," he said.

The Kenyon president said he expects to make a decision within two weeks on whether to stay on the pay board.

Measure To Expand Rights Of 18-Year-Olds Passed

12 The Circleville Herald, Wed. Mar. 29, 1972
Circleville, Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Legislation to make 18-year-olds full-fledged adults—except for the purchase of liquor—was approved Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, the bill's principal sponsor, praised the over-all tenor of the legislation, calling it "a logical outgrowth of the 26th Amendment to the U.S. constitution," which lowered the voting age to 18.

In approving the measure by a 5-1 vote, the committee recommended passage by the full Senate. A floor vote will be

Suharto Announces Buying Of Businesses

JAKARTA (AP) — President Suharto has announced a plan to buy up 50 to 60 per cent of Chinese-owned businesses in Indonesia and sell shares in them to Indonesians.

Suharto said the plan was to help Indonesian businessmen because they lack the capital and skill to compete against the Chinese.

scheduled after the bill is reprinted to incorporate a number of amendments.

One of the amendments, passed 4-3 by the committee, retains the present minimum age of 21 for purchase of intoxicating liquor. The original bill would have permitted 18-year-olds to buy drinks.

The measure gives 18-year-olds the right to hold public office, enter into contracts and marry, and the responsibilities and liabilities that go with those rights.

A bill passed unanimously in

Senate floor action Tuesday would require the state to refund overpayments of the new income tax.

The measure, which now goes to the House, also specifies that the state make the refunds within 90 days or pay a 5 per cent interest rate on the refundable amount.

As enacted late last year, the tax legislation provided only for refunds of money paid or collected illegally or erroneously.

The state tax commissioner has adopted an operating rule that refunds be made for normal overpayments as well, but the bill's sponsor, Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, said the provision should be included in the law.

Another measure passed unanimously and sent to the House authorizes banks acting in a fiduciary capacity to hold in bulks and to merge certificates for a quantity of stocks, bonds or other securities, even though the investments are held for a number of estates or trustees.

Tractor-Trailer Rigs Kill Deer

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Three deer were killed and a tractor-trailer rig was knocked out of commission when two of the large trucks crashed into a herd of deer crossing Interstate 70 south of here about midnight last night.

The accident happened one mile west of the Ohio 37 interchange.

A new cab had to be sent for the disabled truck before it could proceed.

Set Removal Of Chlorine

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Removal of chlorine from a barge stuck in Louisville's McAlpine Dam on the Ohio River was expected to enter the "critical" stage this week.

The critical points in the operation are stabilization of the barge and the actual transfer of the 600 tons of liquid chlorine to another barge.

Officials said they don't know exactly when the stabilization operation will begin, stressing that they don't want to rush the delicate and potentially dangerous procedure. However, they said the chlorine transfer should be started by the weekend.

If liquid chlorine escaped from the four tanks aboard the barge through a tank leak or rupture, it would turn to gas which can be lethal if inhaled.

The barge containing the chlorine was left hung up on the dam after a tow ran aground March 12.

LCI Chief Will Retire April 30

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Charles VanCuren, 59, superintendent of the Lebanon Correctional Institution since 1967, will retire April 30 after 32 years of prison work.

He said he wanted "to enjoy life before I get too old to do it."

VanCuren, who said he will return to his native Lancaster, Ohio, and go into business, notified Ohio Corrections Director Bennett Cooper Tuesday.

VanCuren established a citizens advisory committee at LCI, and added vocational schools and a college program during his tenure.

He began as an assistant cottage parent at the Boys Industrial School, held a number of positions at the Ohio Penitentiary, headed the Hocking Honor Camp at Logan, the Junction City Branch Prison and was named deputy warden at LCI under Supt. R.W. "Red" Alvis, succeeding him in 1967.

He said he expected that his superintendent of treatment, William Dallman, 29, will succeed him temporarily.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

Rain was forecast to spread northeast across the state today, after beginning in the Cincinnati area overnight.

A low developing in Western Kentucky this morning is the cause of the rain, which is expected to continue intermittently tonight.

Cloudy skies should keep temperatures cool, with highs this afternoon in the 40s and low 50s and lows overnight from the mid 30s to mid 40s.

Cool weather will continue tomorrow with highs mostly in the 40s and a chance of light showers or snow flurries in northern Ohio.

A high pressure area is forecast to move into the Ohio Valley Friday, bringing partly-cloudy skies. Highs will continue in the 40s.

OHIO — Occasional rain tonight. Lows from the mid 30s to mid 40s. Thursday cloudy and colder with a chance of light showers or snow flurries, mainly north. Highs in the upper 30s and 40s.

WEST LAKE SHORE, NORTHWEST INLAND — Occasional rain tonight. Lows in the 30s. Thursday cloudy and cool with chance of snow flurries. Highs near 40.

WEST CENTRAL CENTRAL, EAST CENTRAL, SOUTH, WEST, SOUTHEAST — Cloudy with occasional rain tonight. Lows tonight in upper 30s and low 40s. Thursday variable cloudiness and cool with a chance of light showers in the morning. Highs in the 40s.

LSH Hearing On Huff Held

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state Personnel Board of Review hearing on William Huff's request for reinstatement as an attendant at Lima State Hospital will continue several days, according to board Chairman James Huell.

"We've just scratched the surface," Huell said after the hearing began Tuesday. He said the board took up only preliminary matters at the opening session.

Huff, 31, was one of 31 Lima State attendants and former attendants indicted Nov. 22 by a special state grand jury that investigated charges of patient mistreatment at the hospital for criminally insane.

The 28 attendants still working at the hospital at the time of the indictments were fired when they declined to take unpaid leaves of absence pending disposition of their cases.

Huff, the only defendant to be tried so far, received a directed verdict of acquittal from Judge John Harnishferger in Allen County Common Pleas Court.

Measure To Expand Rights Of 18-Year-Olds Passed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Legislation to make 18-year-olds full-fledged adults—except for the purchase of liquor—was approved Tuesday by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Stanley Aronoff, R-8 Cincinnati, the bill's principal sponsor, praised the over-all tenor of the legislation, calling it "a logical outgrowth of the 26th Amendment to the U.S. constitution," which lowered the voting age to 18.

In approving the measure by a 5-1 vote, the committee recommended passage by the full Senate. A floor vote will be scheduled after the bill is re-printed to incorporate a number of amendments.

One of the amendments, passed 4-3 by the committee, retains the present minimum age of 21 for purchase of intoxicating liquor. The original bill would have permitted 18-year-olds to buy drinks.

The measure gives 18-year-olds the right to hold public office, enter into contracts and marry, and the responsibilities and liabilities that go with those rights.

A bill passed unanimously in

Senate floor action Tuesday would require the state to refund overpayments of the new income tax.

The measure, which now goes to the House, also specifies that the state make the refunds within 90 days or pay a 5 percent interest rate on the refundable amount.

As enacted late last year, the tax legislation provided only for refunds of money paid or collected illegally or erroneously. The state tax commissioner has adopted an operating rule that refunds be made for normal overpayments as well, but the bill's sponsor, Sen. Michael Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, said the provision should be included in the law.

Another measure passed unanimously and sent to the House authorizes banks acting in a fiduciary capacity to hold in bulks and to merge certificates for a quantity of stocks, bonds or other securities, even though the investments are held for a number of estates or trustees.

Tractor-Trailer Rigs Kill Deer

NEWARK, Ohio (AP)—Three deer were killed and a tractor-trailer rig was knocked out of commission when two of the large trucks crashed into a herd of deer crossing Interstate 70 south of here about midnight last night.

The accident happened one mile west of the Ohio 37 interchange.

A new cab had to be sent for the disabled truck before it could proceed.

Set Removal Of Chlorine

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Removal of chlorine from a barge stuck in Louisville's McAlpine Dam on the Ohio River was expected to enter the "critical" stage this week.

The critical points in the operation are stabilization of the barge and the actual transfer of the 600 tons of liquid chlorine to another barge.

Officials said they don't know exactly when the stabilization operation will begin, stressing that they don't want to rush the delicate and potentially dangerous procedure. However, they said the chlorine transfer should be started by the week-end.

Set Removal Of Chlorine

If liquid chlorine escaped from the four tanks aboard the barge through a tank leak or rupture, it would turn to gas which can be lethal if inhaled.

The barge containing the chlorine was left hung up on the dam after a tow ran aground March 12.

LCI Chief Will Retire April 30

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Charles VanCuren, 59, superintendent of the Lebanon Correctional Institution since 1967, will retire April 30 after 32 years of prison work.

He said he wanted "to enjoy life before I get too old to do it."

VanCuren, who said he will return to his native Lancaster, Ohio, and go into business, notified Ohio Corrections Director Bennett Cooper Tuesday.

VanCuren established a citizens advisory committee at LCI, and added vocational schools and a college program during his tenure.

He began as an assistant cottage parent at the Boys Industrial School, held a number of positions at the Ohio Penitentiary, headed the Hocking Honor Camp at Logan, the Junction City Branch Prison and was named deputy warden at LCI under Supt. R.W. "Red" Alvis, succeeding him in 1967.

He said he expected that his superintendent of treatment, William Dallman, 29, will succeed him temporarily.

LSH Hearing On Huff Held

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A state Personnel Board of Review hearing on William Huff's request for reinstatement as an attendant at Lima State Hospital will continue several days, according to board Chairman James Huell.

"We've just scratched the surface," Huell said after the hearing began Tuesday. He said the board took up only preliminary matters at the opening session.

Huff, 31, was one of 31 Lima State attendants and former attendants indicted Nov. 22 by a special state grand jury that investigated charges of patient mistreatment at the hospital for criminally insane.

The 28 attendants still working at the hospital at the time of the indictments were fired when they declined to take unpaid leaves of absence pending disposition of their cases.

Huff, the only defendant to be tried so far, received a directed verdict of acquittal from Judge John Harnishferger in Allen County Common Pleas Court.

NEW YORK (AP) — Medical science has made it possible for most people to be born and to die without needless pain. Now science and medicine are trying to find ways so we can live without it. That was the message of NBC's excellent documentary Tuesday night, "Pain: Where Does It Hurt?"

The program, probing an area previously untouched by television, showed the operation of the unique "pain clinic" of the University of Washington in Seattle. It recorded conversations with physicians, psychiatrists, psychologists, therapists and patients. The result was an engrossing exposition of techniques being used to help chronic sufferers.

Pain, it was explained, may be organic or psychological, but one doctor said, "Psychological pain can hurt as much as cancer or broken bones." Another noted that "it is impossible to judge how much other people hurt"—but the researchers are trying to find out.

Efforts to relieve pain take many forms including acupuncture, hypnosis, exercise, psychiatric treatment, surgery and, of course, medication. Many of these were explored on the program.

It was beautifully organized, clear and—above all—helpful. It is a program that would bear repeating.

Earlier NBC presented a well-intentioned sugar-coated editorial on ecology and conservation. Called "Arthur Godfrey's Portable Electric Medicine Show," an assortment of talented performers—Ken Berry, Jack Cassidy, Carol Lawrence and Arte Johnson among them—were given unimpressive material through which to convey the message.

For example, Ken Berry appeared as a singing trash pile in a musical number urging the public to avoid littering and to stand strong for recycling paper and metals. Other subjects treated in song and story were the exploitation of the Indian and protection of wildlife.

The result was a sort of ham-handed "Sesame Street" for adults. Almost everybody is in favor of a cleaner environment and against exploitation, but lectures and entertainment mix about as well as oil and water—unless very artfully blended.

Burt Reynolds, taking over "The Tonight Show" on Johnny Carson's regular Monday night off, attracted the largest audience of any guest host in the history of the program. According to an overnight Nielsen survey in metropolitan New York, the show had twice the audience of its closest competitor, the CBS movie.

Reynolds, of course, is currently the center-fold muscle man of Cosmopolitan—and women outnumber the males in "The Tonight Show" audience.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

On Being Accident-Prone

DEAR ABBY: My husband has had three serious accidents at work in the past two years. I have quit asking him to do chores around the house because he is always smothering his finger with a hammer, cutting himself or falling off the ladder while changing the screens or storm windows. It's a good year when he hasn't had a couple of automobile accidents. The doctors at the plant where he works suggested that he see a PSYCHIATRIST. Why? He isn't crazy.

HIS WIFE

DEAR WIFE: People who have more than their share of "accidents" could be unconsciously punishing themselves for unresolved guilt. And they need not be "crazy" to do so. I think the plant doctor planted a very sound suggestion in your husband's mind.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter in your column about the husband who completely avoids sex. I was glad to learn I wasn't the only person in the world who feels this way about sex. I am a married woman, and thank heavens my husband isn't the type of man who makes unpleasant demands on me.

In almost every article I have ever read about failing marriages, they say the main reason is that one of the partners is "sexually inadequate"—whatever that means.

What most people can't understand is that some people just don't care for sex that much. I personally find the very thought of it sickening. It is really more trouble than it's worth.

I am not an unloving person Abby. I just happen to feel that love can be expressed in other ways. Besides there are too many people in the world already.

Believe me, we have a better marriage than most people I know. And my husband really understands me.

HAPPY WITHOUT SEX

DEAR HAPPY: If you are happy, and your husband is happy, then I am happy.

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a swell guy and I like him a lot. He is very kind and considerate. He's polite, too, helping me with my chair and holding doors open for me. You could say he was a perfect gentleman—except when he eats, Abby, and he eats like a hog! I am so ashamed to eat with him. He slurps his soup and smacks his lips. He locks his little finger over his fork and holds his knife in a tightfist grasp. He eats very quickly and practically shovels his food in. How can I correct him without hurting his feelings? Or worse yet, scaring him off? I don't want to lose him.

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: When you and he are alone together (and ideally, eating) start by suggesting that he eat a little more slowly. Then suggest that he eat a little more quietly. Next, very diplomatically show him how to hold his knife and fork. If you correct him gently, and in the spirit of kindness he will be neither hurt or scared off.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Next Sunday is Easter. Please do not give a child who is too young to care for it properly a living gift. Every year a shocking number of baby chicks, rabbits, kittens and puppies have been mauled.

File Draft Petitions For Repeal Of Tax

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Conservative members of the Ohio House of Representatives today filed draft petitions with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown to amend the constitution repealing the state's income tax.

If the secretary of state approves the form of the petitions and orders them printed, the process of collecting 250,000 signatures—the number required to place the issue on the November statewide ballot—will begin.

British Government Bans Skin Imports

LONDON (AP) — A British government ban on imports of skins of tigers, snow-leopards and clouded leopards to help conserve these species, comes into force today.

Anthony Grant, Parliament's undersecretary of state for trade, told the House of Commons Monday that future imports of leopard and cheetah skins would be allowed only if the British government is satisfied they had been exported in accordance with conservation regulations of the countries of origin.

The American public used 5.2 million outboard boats in 1971.

Major Food Store Officials Face Grilling On Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of a typical family's yearly supply of food went up $23 last month. Middlemen who transport, prepare and sell the items got $18 of the boost, says the Agriculture Department.

Meat prices in particular were markedly higher, a consumer complaint the Nixon administration has publicly recognized. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally has summoned representatives of 12 of the nation's largest food chains to Washington to discuss higher prices Wednesday.

The 12 stores invited are the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., Safeway, Kroger, Acme, National Tea Co., Jewel Cos. Inc., Lucky Stores, Inc., Grand Union Co., Allied Supermarket Inc., Supermarkets General Corp., First National Stores, Inc., and Stop and Shop Cos., Inc.

Farmers, mainly those who produce cattle and hogs, got a $5 increase in last month's market list, according to the report published Monday by the Economic Research Service. In all, the "market basket"—theoretically enough U.S. farm-grown food to supply the typical family for one year—rose to $1,297 last month.

That was $50 more than in November last year.

Compared with a year earlier, the report said, the price of the market basket averaged 6.5 per cent higher. In January the year-earlier spread was 4.5 per cent.

Department economists have predicted grocery-store prices will increase about 4 per cent this year, compared with 2.4 per cent in 1971.

The gain in middleman food-price markups in February provided new ammunition for Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who says farmers are not to blame for rising food costs.

Consumers are spending more for food, particularly meat. Sirloin steak in February averaged $1.54 per pound nationally, compared with $1.49 in January and $1.45 last December, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Hamburger, a faithful standby, was 73 cents a pound last month, up more than two cents since last January, the bureau said.

Busing Curbs Get Hostile Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposal for a moratorium on new busing orders for school desegregation and his chief spokesman for the plan have received their second grilling in a week on Capitol Hill.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson told the House Education Committee Monday that "there is a real likelihood of a growing wave of protests in many communities" if new busing orders aren't blocked.

Richardson's testimony drew a generally hostile reaction from House committee members when he appeared before the Senate Education subcommittee.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., said: "This is the biggest shell game I've seen in my life. I swear to God." And Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., angered Richardson when he questioned the integrity of the Nixon administration and of HEW. I've ITT time and time for the truth," Brademas said.

Asked how the White House decided action is needed now when it has no hard data on the extent of busing for desegregation, Richardson said: "We are addressing a widely held national concern."

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.H., said the administration bill purports "to turn back the desegregation progress of the last 18 years," and Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., told the secretary busing is not the primary issue, but the administration is "stirring up a hornet's nest."

Rabies Cases Take Jump

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The incidence of rabies in Ohio has reached 23 this year, Dr. John W. Cashman of the state Department of Health reported today. There were only seven cases reported during the same period last year.

Of the confirmed cases of rabies reported, 17 were wild animals and six were either pets or farm animals.

Nine persons were infected, with seven either bitten or scratched by a single cat. All nine are undergoing a series of anti-rabies treatments.

The 17 wildlife cases have exposed at least nine dogs and a number of cats in Athens, Champaign, Guernsey, Pike and Preble counties, Dr. Cashman said. He said most of the pets had not been immunized against rabies.

Busing Curbs Get Hostile Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposal for a moratorium on new busing orders for school desegregation and his chief spokesman for the plan have received their second grilling in a week on Capitol Hill.

Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot L. Richardson told the House Education Committee Monday that "there is a real likelihood of a growing wave of protests in many communities" if new busing orders aren't blocked.

Richardson's testimony drew a generally hostile reaction from House committee members when he appeared before the Senate Education subcommittee.

Rep. Roman C. Pucinski, D-Ill., said: "This is the biggest shell game I've seen in my life. I swear to God." And Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., angered Richardson when he questioned the integrity of the Nixon administration and of HEW. "I've ITT time and time for the truth," Brademas said.

Asked how the White House decided action is needed now when it has no hard data on the extent of busing for desegregation, Richardson said: "We are addressing a widely held national concern."

Rep. Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.H., said the administration bill purports "to turn back the desegregation progress of the last 18 years," and Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., told the secretary busing is not the primary issue, but the administration is "stirring up a hornet's nest."

Rabies Cases Take Jump

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The incidence of rabies in Ohio has reached 23 this year, Dr. John W. Cashman of the state Department of Health reported today. There were only seven cases reported during the same period last year.

Nine persons were infected, with seven either bitten or scratched by a single cat. All nine are undergoing a series of anti-rabies treatments.

The 17 wildlife cases have exposed at least nine dogs and a number of cats in Athens, Champaign, Guernsey, Pike and Preble counties, Dr. Cashman said. He said most of the pets had not been immunized against rabies.

Odd Election For Mayor In 'Rubberneck'

Want some excitement and laughs? Then read on!

Father Wilkens refuses to let Uncle Elwyn run for mayor again after being defeated fourteen years by Fletcher Crawford. This crushes Uncle Elwyn's plans, but it also crushes the plans of Mayor Crawford who likes to have Uncle Elwyn run against him because "it unites the voters behind me." Crawford promises dire consequences if Uncle Elwyn fails to run for mayor.

The entire Wilkens family united behind an idea to run a stuffed dummy named Rubberneck for mayor.

In the middle of the campaign, Mother's younger sister, Aunt Roberta, and her fiancé, Arnold, arrive at the Wilkens household to create many new problems.

Cast members include Mike Puckett, Sandy Pearl, Judy Schein, Bob Schobert, Becky Beauman, Bonnie Bailey, Chuck Kennedy, Roger Spradlin, Rex Hix, Cheryl Miller, Bev Lance, and Mark Stubbs. The play is under the direction of Miss Rachel Ford and student directors, Linda Conrad and Beth Beavers.

Who will end up running for mayor? Will Fletcher Crawford ruin the Wilkens household? Will Arnold get sick? Can a stuffed dummy actually win the race for mayor?

If you are curious to find the answer to these problems, come to the Drama Club production of the comedy, "Rubberneck." It will be held Friday, April 7. Everyone is welcome!

Teens Perform In Talent Show

In connection with FHA Week, the Future Homemakers of WHS sponsored a super entertaining talent show. Elaine Clark, emcee, graced the stage with her appearance between performances.

First on the agenda was a piano solo by Stephanie Garland. She played a song entitled "To An Old White Pine."

Becky Easterday came onto the stage as 2½-year-old Little Esmerelda. She performed three "finger plays" called "The Farmer," "Little Bird," and "Helping Daddy Drive." Special help came from her pink Teddy.

"Spinning Wheels" was a solo sung by Debbie Gilpen. She was accompanied by Judy Schein.

A mass of sophomores took part in "Farm-yard Follies." Several songs were sung and the audience participated in the song "Old MacDonald." Participants included Ned Morgan, Jerri Henson, Rick Kennedy, Walter Garland, Dean Darst, Tim Hegarty, Steve Wynn, Becki Easterday, Debbie Vanderpool, Susan Hillman, Dianne Strittmatter, Judy Wright, Nancy Dean, Tim Brigner and Carol Clem.

Steve Cochran did a vocal solo entitled "God Is..." He was accompanied by Nanisa Anderson.

Next to perform were the Fabulous Five. This fantastic "rock" group composed of Superstar Clem, Herbie Hosler,

Easy Riddle, Toro Steinhauser and Boogoo Welsh charged on stage equipped with hats, sunglasses, "refreshments," and lots of go! Their two-number performance included the song "Mame."

Scott Van Horn put a final touch to the program with two piano solos, "Joy" and the theme from Love Story.

Performances were divided into two classes. In the musical division, Scott Van Horn received first place. Second prize went to Steve Cochran and third to Mike Puckett. In the comedy category, first prize went to the Fabulous Five. Chuck Steinhauser and Chuck Kennedy walked off with second prize and third prize went to Tom Eitel and friends. Every contestant entering the show received a small token.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Janet Baker, Mrs. Diane Barbara Yeran and Mr. Mike Hegarty.

Patriotic Theme Used In Style Show

Theme of Westfall's Style Show this year was "Red, White, Blue, and You."

The show was a combination of the Home Economics Department, Art Department, and Vocal Music Department. Nanisa Anderson was coordinator for the event.

There were many categories in the style show this year. Senior girls put their years of experience to work and came up with some very nice coats. Long dresses were all very feminine and should be just right for this year's prom. Of course, the show would not be complete without pant suits, pants, jumpers, jumpsuits, short dresses, skirts, and vests. No one should have missed the hot pants and the bathing suit. Senior girls put the script together and Cheryl Miller was narrator.

The Art Department made very fine stage decorations, posters and programs. The pretty girls in long dresses who took your tickets and ushered you in were Art students also.

The songs, sung by the Vocal Music Department, fit in well with the theme. They were "America the Beautiful," "Born Free," "Pieces of Dreams," "God Bless America," and "The Star-Spangled Banner." The color guard was provided by the Student Council.

The Art Festival, held in conjunction with the style show, featured some fine three-dimensional and two-dimensional art works. Prize categories this year were grand prize, first, second, and third place with an honorable mention. The judges were Gloria Snodgrass, Audrey Turner, and Lisa Yaple.

Along with the Art Festival was the Creative Writing Contest. Many of the entries were products of Westfall's English classes and Mrs. Baker's creative writing class. All categories were pretty well covered. They include short stories, essays, long poems, short poems, Haiku, work cinquain, and syllable cinquain. Judges of the writing contest were two Circleville English teachers, Mr. Walter Sale and Miss Meg Bower. Prize money was given by Mr. Beck from the book fund at Westfall.

British Soldiers In Ireland Fight With Hidden Enemy

BELFAST (AP) — For British soldiers in the streets of Northern Ireland, it is a war against a hidden enemy.

Any man on patrol, no matter how quiet the streets may seem, can run into a sniper's bullet at any time.

More and more often the British soldiers, sent here in response to an appeal from the Roman Catholic minority in 1969, are being taunted by an enemy who inflicts injury or death and melts away into the civilian population.

Part of the soldier's job in combating guerrilla war is to seek to bring the enemy into the open. At night, in Belfast, troops with blackened faces flit from corner to corner in the Catholic areas with the aim of getting shot at—so that they can shoot back.

A private soldier gets an average of $9.10 a day. The rates vary according to length of service. Out of this he pays for some of his food and smaller items of uniform. It's an all-volunteer army. Recruiting relies heavily on family tradi-

Siciliano Sole Businessman Remaining On Wage Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rocco C. Siciliano, former president of a Los Angeles holding company and undersecretary of commerce, has been named by President Nixon as the lone business representative to remain on the revamped Federal Pay Board.

The White House said Nixon made the decision over the weekend, which he spent at Camp David in Maryland. The other four business members

Welfare Plan Future Seen Uncertain

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's renewed plea for quick Senate action on his welfare-reform plan has encouraged some backers, but several key senators rate the bill's prospects as uncertain.

Many supporters long have predicted the plan would be defeated in the Finance Committee and that chances of restoring it in floor debate then would be about 50-50. They said they saw no change in these odds after Nixon's appeal Monday.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance chairman, said he remains strongly opposed to it.

Long, who many say has the committee votes necessary to drop the plan from the House-passed Social Security-welfare-reform bill, has been preparing a substitute which would eliminate the two key features of the Nixon proposal. These are the $2,400 minimum guaranteed income for a family of four and cash payments for the first time to the working poor.

The substitute would stress work requirements and tie future welfare payments to the recipient's willingness to take a job.

In his special message, Nixon called the plan "the most important single piece of social legislation to have come before Congress in several decades."

The President said the welfare situation has become "a social and political time bomb."

Nixon plugged hard for payments to the working poor, a feature that has come under particular fire from conservative Republicans on the Finance panel.

Hawaiians Take To Water, Solve Transport Problem

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Taking their cues from such cities as Venice and Amsterdam, Hawaiians are taking to the water to solve their monumental mass transit problems.

They're talking about connecting the islands with a ferry system, sending passenger ships along the coast and lacing old Honolulu with canals over whose waters would skim hovercraft with minibuses full of people.

There will be no gondoliers but plenty of coffee and newspapers aboard when the 500-passenger ship Hawaii begins operating April 3 between the residential community of Ewa, west of Pearl Harbor, and the Aloha Tower in downtown Honolulu, bypassing one of Oahu's worst traffic snarls.

The firm of Kentron Hawaii will operate the ship, which for a dollar will take Ewa residents over seven miles of water to their downtown jobs in 40 minutes, said Kentron researcher Ralph Patterson. It would take a motorist an hour to make the trip over 22 miles of roads.

The Hawaii may be only a first step. Dr. John P. Craven, the state's marine affairs coordinator, has suggested a canal system as an alternative to a proposed $500-million fixed rail system for Honolulu.

In an interview, Craven said his canal system would cost $150 million, would be less damaging to the environment and could move passengers at 50 miles per hour, even up the canals—about as fast as a fixed rail system.

"It's simply a matter of deepening streams that already exist and building three miles of new canals," he said. Craven added that the Boeing hydrofoil he proposes to use already meets emission and noise standards set by California for 1972.

About 40 of these 250-passenger hydrofoils would be the backbone of the system. They would glide along Honolulu's coast, dropping off passengers at such spots as Pearl Harbor, Honolulu International Airport, the site of a football stadium now under construction and Waikiki.

The passengers would then board 40-passenger minibuses, three of which would sit aboard a Bell hovercraft as it cruised up a canal to major points of interest. The minibuses would carry passengers to their final destinations.

In your lawn—and in your pocket. TURF BUILDER is the lawn food we recommend most often for spring fertilizing. It releases its nutrients only as fast as the grass can use them. So there's no spindly surge growth to cause extra mowing and no wasteful leaching away of nutrients — no matter how much it rains. TURF BUILDER produces a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Lasts longer too, because it's Trionized.

British Soldiers In Ireland Fight With Hidden Enemy

BELFAST (AP) — For British soldiers in the streets of Northern Ireland, it is a war against a hidden enemy.

Any man on patrol, no matter how quiet the streets may seem, can run into a sniper's bullet at any time.

More and more often the British soldiers, sent here in response to an appeal from the Roman Catholic minority in 1969, are being taunted by an enemy who inflicts injury or death and melts away into the civilian population.

Part of the soldier's job in combating guerrilla war is to seek to bring the enemy into the open. At night, in Belfast, troops with blackened faces flit from corner to corner in the Catholic areas with the aim of getting shot at—so that they can shoot back.

A private soldier gets an average of $9.10 a day. The rates vary according to length of service. Out of this he pays for some of his food and smaller items of uniform. It's an all-volunteer army. Recruiting relies heavily on family tradition. Most units include several sets of brothers.

The army was first called on to the streets of Northern Ireland in August 1969. No soldier was killed until February 1971. Now the army's death toll stands at 56. More than 400 soldiers have been wounded.

There now are 15,000 soldiers on duty here. Men on frontline duty come for a tour of four to six months. During that time they are perpetually on call, except for one rest day a month.

And even on the rest day they must keep inside their makeshift barracks—old bus depots, disused factories. Any soldier who went out to a bar or the movies would risk assassination.

On a Sunday afternoon the soldiers may attend an inter-denominational church service. They sign hymns, pray together, listen to their chaplain.

But then it is back to duty in flak jackets, with loaded rifles, out into the streets where even women and children stone them and curse them.

Siciliano Sole Businessman Remaining On Wage Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rocco C. Siciliano, former president of a Los Angeles holding company and undersecretary of commerce, has been named by President Nixon as the lone business representative to remain on the revamped Federal Pay Board.

The White House said Nixon made the decision over the weekend, which he spent at Camp David in Maryland. The other four business members "volunteered to resign" said deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren, in the wake of the walkout of three labor members of the Pay Board and President Nixon's action to reconstitute the panel as a seven-member all public pay board.

Siciliano, 50, a native of Salt Lake City, served in both the Eisenhower and Nixon administrations and came from a post as president of the T.I. Corp., a Los Angeles holding company for title insurance operations. He has considerable background in labor negotiations and formerly was president of the Pacific Maritime Association in San Francisco and negotiated on the management side in West Coast dock disputes.

He was undersecretary of Commerce in the Nixon administration from 1969 until about a year ago. He also was assistant secretary of labor and a special assistant to the President for personnel management during the Eisenhower administration.

Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the Teamsters union, stayed on the board as the labor representative after the other labor members walked out.

And Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., Finance chairman, said he remains strongly opposed to it. Long, who many say has the committee votes necessary to drop the plan from the House-passed Social Security-welfare-reform bill, has been preparing a substitute which would eliminate the two key features of the Nixon proposal. These are the $2,400 minimum guaranteed income for a family of four and cash payments for the first time to the working poor.

The substitute would stress work requirements and tie future welfare payments to the recipient's willingness to take a job.

In his special message, Nixon called the plan "the most important single piece of social legislation to have come before Congress in several decades."

The President said the welfare situation has become "a social and political time bomb."

Nixon plugged hard for payments to the working poor, a feature that has come under particular fire from conservative Republicans on the Finance panel.

Hawaiians Take To Water, Solve Transport Problem

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer
HONOLULU (AP) — Taking their cues from such cities as Venice and Amsterdam, Hawaiians are taking to the water to solve their monumental mass transit problems.

They're talking about connecting the islands with a ferry system, sending passenger ships along the coast and lacing old Honolulu with canals over whose waters would skim hovercraft with minibuses full of people.

There will be no gondoliers but plenty of coffee and newspapers aboard when the 500-passenger ship Hawaii begins operating April 3 between the residential community of Ewa, west of Pearl Harbor, and the Aloha Tower in downtown Honolulu, bypassing one of Oahu's worst traffic snarls.

The firm of Kentron Hawaii will operate the ship, which for a dollar will take Ewa residents over seven miles of water to their downtown jobs in 40 minutes, said Kentron researcher Ralph Patterson. It would take a motorist an hour to make the trip over 22 miles of roads.

The Hawaii may be only a first step. Dr. John P. Craven, the state's marine affairs coordinator, has suggested a canal system as an alternative to a proposed $500-million fixed rail system for Honolulu.

In an interview, Craven said his canal system would cost $150 million, would be less damaging to the environment and could move passengers at 50 miles per hour, even up the canals—about as fast as a fixed rail system.

"It's simply a matter of deepening streams that already exist and building three miles of new canals," he said. Craven added that the Boeing hydrofoil he proposes to use already meets emission and noise standards set by California for 1972.

About 40 of these 250-passenger hydrofoils would be the backbone of the system. They would glide along Honolulu's coast, dropping off passengers at such spots as Pearl Harbor, Honolulu International Airport, the site of a football stadium now under construction and Waikiki.

The passengers would then board 40-passenger minibuses, three of which would sit aboard a Bell hovercraft as it cruised up a canal to major points of interest. The minibuses would carry passengers to their final destinations.

Get some green back!

In your lawn—and in your pocket.

TURF BUILDER is the lawn food we recommend most often for spring fertilizing. It releases its nutrients only as fast as the grass can use them. So there's no spindly surge growth to cause extra mowing and no wasteful leaching away of nutrients — no matter how much it rains. TURF BUILDER produces a thicker, greener, sturdier lawn. Lasts longer too, because it's Trionized.

Logan Elm Wins Opening Tilt, 8-1

Logan Elm High School baseball team opened the season Tuesday winning an 8-1 decision at Berne Union.

LE pitchers Rick Blankenship and Doug Marshall teamed up to hurl the victory. The lone run for the Rockets was unearned and came in the bottom of the first inning when their leadoff hitter was walked, stole second and after two outs scored on an error.

Blankenship went the first four innings, walking one, fanning eight and giving up one hit. Marshall finished the game, walking two, fanning five and allowing two hits.

Jackson was the losing pitcher. He struck out six, walked two and was touched for 11 hits.

Tiger Cindermen Crush Hamilton Twp., 93-34

Tom Frericks, Rich Speakman and Dick Liston were double individual winners as Circleville captured 13 first place finishes and downed Hamilton Twp., 93-34, in a dual track meet Tuesday at the latter's track.

Frericks won the discus and shot, Speakman led the field in the 120 low hurdles and 180 high hurdles while Liston finished first in the 880 run and the mile run.

Other first spots went to Reggie Radcliff in the pole vault, Tom Shea in the 100-yard dash, Joe McGowan captured the 440, Marc Warner won the 220 and Steve Richards took the 2-mile run.

Circleville's 880 relay team, Warner, Pete Bowers, Iain Griffey and Shea, and the mile relay team, Speakman, John Ankrom, Jeff Hoffman and Joe McGowan, both took top spots in the events.

Vida Blue Still Seeks A's Contract

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vida Blue, the best pitcher in baseball last season, playfully shuffled the papers on the desk and quipped, "another hard day at the office."

The 22-year-old Oakland A's holdout admitted Tuesday that his mind is still set on playing baseball this year despite foreseeing no immediate agreement in contract talks with A's owner Charles O. Finley.

"I may sound like a fool," said Vida. "I'm going to play baseball this season and if I play, I'm going to be happy."

Does this mean that Blue will come down from his demand, already lowered from more than $100,000 to $75,000, or that Finley may come up from his apparently unyielding offer of $50,000?

He said "nothing has happened" to bring him closer to a settlement. He rejected Finley's latest offer, $50,000 plus a reported payment up to $5,000 to his attorney, Robert Gerst of Los Angeles.

"I'm still at the same place I was when we first met on Jan. 8 in Chicago," Blue said of the meeting that opened contract negotiations.

Williams, Morris Top Kick Returners

NEW YORK (AP) — Travis Williams of Los Angeles, who blazed an electrifying 105 yards for a touchdown against New Orleans, was the National Football League's leading kickoff return specialist in 1971.

"The Roadrunner" of the Rams, who led the league in 1967 when he played for Green Bay, topped the runback men with a 29.7-yard average on 25 kickoff returns totaling 743 yards.

The American Conference leader, fifth over-all, was Mercury Morris of the Miami Dolphins, who averaged 28.2 yards, amassing 423 yards on 15 returns.

Cornada Victorious At Latonia Raceway

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Cornada, who went off at 40-1, grabbed the lead near the end of the stretch to win the featured $4,500 eighth race at Latonia by one and one half lengths Tuesday night, covering the six furlongs in 1:12.

A $2 bet was worth $89.40, $36.00 and $12.00. Baron Snow, who led all the way except across the finish line, paid $13.40 and $11.80 for second, and Champagne Fizz, third, $4.40.

Tonielle and Ackme, 5-3, paid $147.20 in the daily double. Attendance was 4,071 and the handle was $392,515.

THE Braves wasted no time in taking the lead in last night's game, scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. Mark Justus started the hit-parade when he singled. Gary Francis then poled a long homerun to centerfield to account for two of the runs. Blankenship followed with a single but was forced at second on a ground ball hit by Marshall.

In the second inning, the Braves scored one when with two outs, Mike Holbrook walked, stole second and then crossed home plate on a single by Mark Justus.

In the third another run was added when Teets led off with a double, advanced to third and home on singles by Marshall and Gary Wertman.

The Braves were then blanked until the top of the seventh. With one out in the seventh, consecutive singles by Justus, Francis and Blankenship loaded the bases.

Then Marshall lashed a triple. He was tagged out at the plate trying to stretch it into a homerun.

The Braves committed two errors in the opener. The next game for the Braves is 3 p.m. Thursday on the LE diamond. Teays Valley will provide the opposition.

Second place finishes for the Tigers went to Fred Belle in the long jump, Chris Payne in the 120 high hurdles, Warner in the 100, Matt McGowan in the mile run, Dave Mehalick in the 880, Shea in the 200, Paul Cupp in the 2-mile and Randy Hott tied for second in the 180 low hurdles.

Third spots went to Stu Moore in the high jump, Steve Watters in the pole vault, Glen Gillespie in mile run, Ankrom in the 440 and Matt McGowan in the 880. Circleville will be back on the cinders 4 p.m. Thursday in a tri-meet at Wehrle with Bloom Carroll.

Here are the complete results of the meet:

Seek Cause Of Fatal Plane Crash

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four Ohio men died early Tuesday when their turbo-prop plane struck a tree and crashed in a vacant lot as they were attempting to land at Nashville's foggy metropolitan airport.

Killed were Paul Clark, 40, the pilot; Kenneth Bolton, the co-pilot; and Russell Comstock and Lawrence Baker, both 45, all of Sidney, Ohio.

Comstock and Baker were executive of the Copeland Refrigerating Co. Authorities said they had a business appointment at Nashville.

Clark was owner of the Sidney airport. Federal Aviation Administration officials said Tuesday that they were mystified by the accident. An initial investigation turned up no indication of what went wrong.

"He got too low for some reason," John Hornalay, a veteran FAA inspector said. "If we find out why he was so low, we'll know what caused it."

Controllers at the Nashville tower said neither Clark nor Bolton mentioned any difficulty as they were cleared for an instrument landing. Investigators said navigation instruments found in the wreckage were properly set.

The crash occurred about two miles from the runway.

"It sounded like he reved the engines," said one witness to the crash, "but he clipped some of the trees... wheels and wings were flying all over the place."

Tax Consultants Face Charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two part-time tax consultants in Northeastern Ohio have been charged with tax fraud as part of a crackdown on persons who prepare tax returns for others.

Arrested Tuesday and charged with inflating the number of dependents on tax returns were Aaron Hollingsworth, 54, of Cleveland and Willy Fulton of Warren.

Hollingsworth appeared before U.S. Magistrate Herbert Maher in Cleveland and was released on $2,000 personal bond. Fulton was released on $1,000 following an appearance before a magistrate in Warren.

Auto Thefts Rise

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Automobile thefts have risen some 183 per cent in the last 10 years and increased to almost one million thefts per year. He presented these and other facts to some 100 law enforcement officers attending a seminar here.

Floridians Set Move To Cincy If Plan Approved

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Floridians of the American Basketball Association apparently are moving to Cincinnati.

The attorney for a 10-member Cincinnati group said Tuesday "the team is ours" barring some unforeseen barrier in negotiations with Floridian owner Ned Doyle.

Ron Grinker said the purchase price of $1.5 million had been agreed upon and Floridian Vice President David Zack admitted the Cincinnati group "is the leading contender. Hopefully, we'll close it sometime this week."

The Floridians, averaging well under 2,500 at Miami Beach Convention Hall, have been losing almost $1 million a year for Doyle, a retired New York advertising millionaire.

The league must agree to any transfer.

Doyle paid $1 million for the floundering franchise two years ago and underwrote a barrage of promotions including bikini-clad ballgirls in an attempt to attract south Florida sports fans. They also played games in Tampa, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach.

Nothing worked.

"Personally, it would hurt to sell," Doyle said, "but financially it would be good for me."

Also named to the Ohio squad were Marty Hunt of Kenyon, the most valuable player in the Ohio Conference, David Jones of Ashland, Jack Mehl of Otterbein and Bob Arnold of Capital.

Indiana all-stars picked so far are Joby Wright of Indiana, Bob Ford of Purdue and Bill Shepherd of Butler, the host for the April 14 game. The second contest will be played at Ohio State.

Aaron McCutcheon of Evansville will guide the Hoosiers and Vince Chickerella will coach the Buckeye stars.

More than $50,000 has been raised for Sertoma charities in the two-year-old series, tied at two victories apiece.

Cincinnati recently lost its National Basketball Association team to Kansas City for the same reason — poor attendance.

Ohio-Indiana All-Star Tilt Picks Made

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mark Minor of Ohio State and five Mid-American Conference players have been selected for the Ohio all-star basketball squad that plays a two-game series against Indiana all-stars.

The Sertoma Charity all-star series, pitting the top college seniors in the two states, will be played April 14 in Indianapolis and here April 15.

Minor, a 6-foot-5 defensive whiz, was the most valuable player for the Buckeye team that finished second in the Big Ten.

Mid-American players selected were Tom Corde of champion Ohio University, Darrel Dunlap and Tom Roberts of Miami and Roger Evans and Ruben Vance of Kent State.

Lee Trevino Mild Favorite In Greensboro Open Clash

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino, coming off a week's rest and primed by some unusually serious preparations, ranked as a mild favorite in an exceptionally strong field arrayed for the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"By the time the tournament starts, I'll have in six or eight practice rounds," he said Tuesday before another prep session on the 7,034-yard, par 36-35-71 Sedgefield Country Club course. "That's really unusual for me. I usually get in just one practice round and then play in the tournament. I don't know that I've ever had this much practice before. I think it'll be good for me."

Trevino, the 1971 Athlete of the Year, took some time away from the tour last week—his first break of the season—and came to Greensboro early after finishing some business commitments in New York.

Trevino, winner of three national open titles last season, admitted he also was using the practice time to sharpen his game for next week's Masters, an event he has boycotted for the last two years.

He faces a very strong field in this 72-hole event that begins Thursday. The 147-man field includes 43 of the top 50 money winners from last season, with Jack Nicklaus the only superstar among the missing.

Nicklaus, the season's leading money winner, the only two-time champion and runner-up to Gary Player in last week's Greater New Orleans Open, took the week off to visit Augusta, Ga., and get ready for the Masters.

Arnold Palmer filed a late entry and joined Billy Casper, Player, current Masters champion Charles Coody, England's Tony Jacklin, George Archer and defending titleholder Buddy Allin as Trevino's chief challengers for the rich $40,000 first prize.

Logan Elm Wins Opening Tilt, 8-1

Logan Elm High School baseball team opened the season Tuesday winning an 8-1 decision at Berne Union.

LE pitchers Rick Blankenship and Doug Marshall teamed up to hurl the victory. The lone run for the Rockets was unearned and came in the bottom of the first inning when their leadoff hitter was walked, stole second and after two outs scored on an error.

Blankenship went the first four innings, walking one, fanning eight and giving up one hit. Marshall finished the game, walking two, fanning five and allowing two hits.

Jackson was the losing pitcher. He struck out six, walked two and was touched for 11 hits.

THE Braves wasted no time in taking the lead in last night's game, scoring three runs in the top of the first inning. Mark Justus started the hit-parade when he singled. Gary Francis then poled a long homerun to centerfield to account for two of the runs. Blankenship followed with a single but was forced at second on a ground ball by Wertz Teets. Teets stole second and scored on an error that came on an infield ground ball hit by Marshall.

In the second inning, the Braves scored one when, with two out, Mike Holbrook walked, stole second and then crossed home plate on a single by Mark Justus.

In the third another run was added when Teets led off with a double, advanced to third and home on singles by Marshall and Gary Wertzman.

The Braves were then blanked until the top of the seventh. With one out in the seventh, consecutive singles by Justus, Francis and Blankenship loaded the bases.

Then Marshall lashed a triple. He was tagged out at the plate trying to stretch it into a homerun.

The Braves committed two errors in the opener. The next game for the Braves is 3 p.m. Thursday on the LE diamond. Teays Valley will provide the opposition.

Tiger Cindermen Crush Hamilton Twp., 93-34

Tom Frericks, Rich Speakman and Dick Liston were double individual winners as Circleville captured 13 first place finishes and downed Hamilton Twp., 93-34, in a dual track meet Tuesday at the latter's track.

Frericks won the discus and shot. Speakman led the field in the 120 low hurdles and 180 high hurdles while Liston finished first in the 880 run and the mile run.

Other first spots went to Reggie Radcliff in the pole vault, Tom Shea in the 100-yard dash, Joe McGowan captured the 440, Marc Warner won the 220 and Steve Richards took the 2-mile run.

Circleville's 880 relay team, Warner, Pete Bowers, Iain Griffey and Shea, and the mile relay team, Speakman, John Ankrom, Jeff Hoffman and Joe McGowan, both took top spots in the events.

Vida Blue Still Seeks A's Contract

SANTA FE SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Vida Blue, the best pitcher in baseball last season, playfully shuffled the papers on the desk and quipped, "another hard day at the office."

The 22-year-old Oakland A's holdout admitted Tuesday that his mind is still set on playing baseball this year despite foreseeing no immediate agreement in contract talks with A's owner Charles O. Finley.

"I may sound like a fool," said Vida. "I'm going to play baseball this season and if I play, I'm going to be happy."

Does this mean that Blue will come down from his demand, already lowered from more than $100,000 to $75,000, or that Finley may come up from his apparently unyielding offer of $50,000?

He said "nothing has happened" to bring him closer to a settlement. He rejected Finley's latest offer, $50,000 plus a reported payment up to $5,000 to his attorney, Robert Gerst of Los Angeles.

"I'm still at the same place I was when we first met on Jan. 8 in Chicago," Blue said of the meeting that opened contract negotiations.

Williams, Morris Top Kick Returners

NEW YORK (AP) — Travis Williams of Los Angeles, who blazed an electrifying 105 yards for a touchdown against New Orleans, was the National Football League's leading kickoff return specialist in 1971.

"The Roadrunner" of the Rams, who led the league in 1967 when he played for Green Bay, topped the runback men with a 29.7-yard average on 25 kickoff returns totaling 743 yards.

The American Conference leader, fifth over-all, was Mercury Morris of the Miami Dolphins, who averaged 28.2 yards, amassing 423 yards on 15 returns.

Cornada Victorious At Latonia Raceway

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — Cornada, who went off at 40-1, grabbed the lead near the end of the stretch to win the featured $4,500 eighth race at Latonia by one and one half lengths Tuesday night, covering the six furlongs in 1:12.

A $2 bet was worth $89.40, $36.00 and $12.00. Baron Snow, who led all the way except across the finish line, paid $13.40 and $11.80 for second, and Champagne Fizz, third, $4.40.

Tonivelle and Ackme, 5-3, paid $147.20 in the daily double. Attendance was 4,071 and the handle was $392,515.

Second place finishes for the Tigers went to Fred Belle in the long jump, Chris Payne in the 120 high hurdles, Warner in the 100, Matt McGowan in the mile run, Dave Mehlick in the 880, Shea in the 200, Paul Cupp in the 2-mile and Randy Hott tied for second in the 180 low hurdles.

Third spots went to Stu Moore in the high jump, Steve Watters in the pole vault, Glen Gillespie in the mile run, Ankrom in the 440 and Matt McGowan in the 880.

Circleville will be back on the cinders 4 p.m. Thursday in a tri-meet at Wehrle with Bloom Carroll.

Here are the complete results of the meet:

Seek Cause Of Fatal Plane Crash

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Four Ohio men died early Tuesday when their turbo-prop plane struck a tree and crashed in a vacant lot as they were attempting to land at Nashville's foggy metropolitan airport.

Killed were Paul Clark, 40, the pilot; Kenneth Bolton, the co-pilot; and Russell Comstock and Lawrence Baker, both 45, all of Sidney, Ohio.

Comstock and Baker were executive of the Copeland Refrigerating Co. Authorities said they had a business appointment at Nashville.

Clark was owner of the Sidney airport.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said Tuesday that they were mystified by the accident. An initial investigation turned up no indication of what went wrong.

"He got too low for some reason," John Hormalay, a veteran FAA inspector said. "If we find out why he was so low, we'll know what caused it."

Controllers at the Nashville tower said neither Clark nor Bolton mentioned any difficulty as they were cleared for an instrument landing. Investigators said navigation instruments found in the wreckage were properly set.

The crash occurred about two miles from the runway.

"It sounded like he reved the engines," said one witness to the crash, "but he clipped some of the trees. . . wheels and wings were flying all over the place."

Tax Consultants Face Charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two part-time tax consultants in Northeastern Ohio have been charged with tax fraud as part of a crackdown on persons who prepare tax returns for others.

Arrested Tuesday and charged with inflating the number of dependents on tax returns were Aaron Hollingsworth, 54, of Cleveland and Willy Fulton of Warren.

Hollingsworth appeared before U.S. Magistrate Herbert Maher in Cleveland and was released on $2,000 personal bond. Fulton was released on $1,000 following an appearance before a magistrate in Warren.

Auto Thefts Rise

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Automobile thefts have risen some 183 per cent in the last 10 years and increased to almost one million thefts per year. The actual cost in physical damage is in the neighborhood of $1 billion per year, says C. C. Benson, manager, Southwestern division, National Automobile Theft Bureau.

He presented these and other facts to some 100 law enforcement officers attending a seminar here.

Floridians Set Move To Cincy If Plan Approved

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — The Floridians of the American Basketball Association apparently are moving to Cincinnati.

The attorney for a 10-member Cincinnati group said Tuesday "the team is ours" barring some unforeseen barrier in negotiations with Floridian owner Ned Doyle.

Ron Grinker said the purchase price of $1.5 million had been agreed upon and Floridian Vice President David Zack admitted the Cincinnati group "is the leading contender. Hopefully, we'll close it sometime this week."

The Floridians, averaging well under 2,500 at Miami Beach Convention Hall, have been losing almost $1 million a year for Doyle, a retired New York advertising millionaire.

The league must agree to any transfer.

Doyle paid $1 million for the floundering franchise two years ago and underwrote a barrage of promotions including bikini-clad ballgirls in an attempt to attract south Florida sports fans. They also played games in Tampa, Jacksonville and West Palm Beach.

Nothing worked.

"Personally, it would hurt to sell," Doyle said, "but financially it would be good for me."

King Storm Wins Feature At Lebanon

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — King Storm grabbed the lead in the last 100 feet to win the featured mile for trotters in the eighth race at Lebanon Raceway Tuesday night by half a length.

The winner paid $7.20, $3.40 and $2.20. Dotty's First was second, $5.20 and $2.80 and Garys Dream, third, $2.40.

The daily double was worth $10.60 with Shanty Boat and Kerry Nib, 2-4.

Ohio-Indiana All-Star Tilt Picks Made

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mark Minor of Ohio State and five Mid-American Conference players have been selected for the Ohio all-star basketball squad that plays a two-game series against Indiana all-stars.

The Sertoma Charity all-star series, pitting the top college seniors in the two states, will be played April 14 in Indianapolis and here April 15.

Minor, a 6-foot-5 defensive whiz, was the most valuable player for the Buckeye team that finished second in the Big Ten.

Mid-American players selected were Tom Corde of co-champion Ohio University, Darrel Dunlap and Tom Roberts of Miami and Roger Evans and Ruben Vance of Kent State.

Also named to the Ohio squad were Marty Hunt of Kenyon, the most valuable player in the Ohio Conference, David Jones of Ashland, Jack Mehl of Otterbein and Bob Arnold of Capital.

Indiana all-stars picked so far are Joby Wright of Indiana, Bob Ford of Purdue and Bill Shepherd of Butler, the host for the April 14 game. The second contest will be played at Ohio State.

Aaron McCutcheon of Evansville will guide the Hoosiers and Vince Chickerella will coach the Buckeye stars.

More than $50,000 has been raised for Sertoma charities in the two-year-old series, tied at two victories apiece.

Lee Trevino Mild Favorite In Greensboro Open Clash

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino, coming off a week's rest and primed by some unusually serious preparations, ranked as a mild favorite in an exceptionally strong field arrayed for the $200,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"By the time the tournament starts, I'll have in six or eight practice rounds," he said Tuesday before another prep session on the 7,034-yard, par 36-35-71 Sedgfield Country Club course.

"That's really unusual for me. I usually get in just one practice round and then play in the tournament. I don't know that I've ever had this much practice before. I think it'll be good for me."

Trevino, the 1971 Athlete of the Year, took some time away from the tour last week—his first break of the season—and came to Greensboro early after finishing some business commitments in New York.

Trevino, winner of three national open titles last season, admitted he also was using the practice time to sharpen his game for next week's Masters, an event he has boycotted for the last two years.

He faces a very strong field in this 72-hole event that begins Thursday. The 147-man field includes 43 of the top 50 money winners from last season, with Jack Nicklaus the only superstar among the missing.

Nicklaus, the season's leading money winner, the only two-time champion and runner-up to Gary Player in last week's Greater New Orleans Open, took the week off to visit Augusta, Ga., and get ready for the Masters.

Arnold Palmer filed a late entry and joined Billy Casper, Player, current Masters champion Charles Coody, England's Tony Jacklin, George Archer and defending titleholder Buddy Allin as Trevino's chief challengers for the rich $40,000 first prize.

Tulley Seeks Tax Repeal Showdown

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A leader in the income tax repeal movement who suggested former Gov. James Rhodes as a possible chairman for his group was to meet today with Ohio GOP Chairman John Andrews.

Rep. Joseph Tulley, R-37 Mentor, said he was called by Andrews shortly after he suggested to newsmen that Rhodes or ex-U.S. Sen. Frank Lausche, a Democrat, head the movement.

Tulley's anti-income tax colleagues in the House contended the offer to Rhodes was a tongue-in-cheek proposal to force GOP headquarters to take a stand on the repeal.

Tulley, asked if he knew what Andrews wanted to talk to him about, smiled and said, "I don't think there's any doubt about that."

Andrews acknowledged that he was to meet with Tulley, but said "we did not discuss the subject that we are going to talk about."

Leaders of the repeal movement have long contended that the state Republican Party organization helped get the Gov. John Gilligan-endorsed tax through the General Assembly.

Rep. Robert Netzel, R-7 Laura, another leader in the drive, has accused Rhodes, Andrews and House Speaker Charles Kurfess, R-4 Perryburg, of working for the income tax.

Bob Robertson's Big Bat Powers Pirates To Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bob Robertson won instant fame in the 1971 World Series as the world's longest bunter. Now, he's trying to win acclaim as a spring training blaster—and without the bunt sign.

The Pittsburgh Pirates' first baseman hit a home run against Baltimore last October to win a Series' game. He didn't know until he had circled the bases that Manager Danny Murtaugh had signaled for a sacrifice.

Robertson homered twice against St. Louis Tuesday for a 6-2 exhibition baseball victory. It was the second time within a week he slugged two homers in a game. The pair against the Cards gives him five for the spring training games and 16 runs batted in.

In other games, Cincinnati topped Houston 7-3, Baltimore routed Texas 6-1, Detroit nipped the New York Mets 5-4, Philadelphia edged the Chicago White Sox 3-2, Los Angeles trimmed the New York Yankees 6-5, Minnesota and Boston tied 3-3 in a contest stopped by rain, California beat Oakland 6-1, the Chicago Cubs downed San Diego 8-6, Cleveland defeated San Francisco 6-2, Milwaukee clipped the Cleveland "B" team, 5-3, and the Montreal Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 5-4 in 10 innings.

Dennis Menke homered and Joe Morgan and Cesar Geronimo each drove in runs for Cincinnati. All three are former Houston Astros, taking a little pre-season revenge.

Bobby Grich doubled in two runs in the third inning and Andy Etchebarren homered for two more Baltimore runs.

Mets' pitcher Brent Strom's walk gave Detroit its winning run with the bases loaded in the 10th inning after homers by Al Kaline and Bill Freehan in the ninth had tied the game.

Greg Luzinski's homer in the ninth inning gave the Phillies their victory over Chicago. Don Money had homered earlier for Philadelphia.

Willie Davis' homer in the eighth broke the Dodgers' 5-5 tie with the Yankees. New York scored four unearned runs in the first inning and Los Angeles came back for two unearned runs in the third.

A two-run homer by Harmon Killebrew pulled Minnesota into a tie with Boston and the game was called because of rain after eight innings.

The Cubs scored five runs in the eighth inning, then Carmine Fanzone homered in the ninth to defeat San Diego. Del Unser homered for two runs for Cleveland, which beat San Francisco.

Dave May's three-run homer was the big blast in Milwaukee's five-run seventh inning against the Cleveland "B" team.

Nets Defeat Indiana Pacers; Squires Lose

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The New York Nets won their second Tuesday night—two and Virginia's.

New York closed out its regular season with a 92-86 victory over the Indiana Pacers, while the Virginia Squire dropped a 127-121 decision to the Carolina Cougars.

As a result, the Nets pulled within one half-game of Virginia in the race for second place in the American Basketball Association's East Division. The Squires wind up their regular schedule at Memphis tonight.

If Virginia loses tonight, the teams will finish in a tie with 44-40 win-loss records. A one-game playoff would be held to determine the second place finisher.

What's the difference between finishing second or third?

The difference is in first-round playoff opponents, and it's a big difference.

The second place finisher will meet the Floridians, who assured themselves of a playoff berth Tuesday night by beating Memphis, who has the dubious honor of drawing the Kentucky Colonels, the club with the best record in the entire ABA, as a first-round opponent.

In other ABA games, Dallas edged Utah 98-95 and Kentucky nipped Pittsburgh 134-132.

Jose Napoles Stops Britain's Charles

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — "The British boy never hurt me," declared a confident, elated Jose Napoles of Mexico after knocking out Britain's Ralph Charles to retain his welterweight boxing title.

It was an even bout until the 32-year-old Cuban-born champion caught the red-haired Englishman with a flurry of punches late in the seventh round Tuesday night. Napoles registered the knockout after 2 minutes, 52 seconds of the round with a left hook followed by a right cross.

Weaver Sees Even Better Orioles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles have won 318 regular season games and nine straight in the playoffs while sweeping to three straight American League pennants.

For 1972, Manager Earl Weaver sees likely improvement for the Orioles.

"There's no reason we should be any worse," Weaver said, "and chances are we'll be better."

Dave McNally, one of four Baltimore 20-game winners last year, was out of action 38 days. Boog Powell, the league's Most Valuable Player of 1970, hit below his weight at .256. Paul Blair, off to a slow start, managed to hit just .262.

Weaver, always optimistic and aggressive, doesn't expect such misfortune again.

The Orioles never won a pennant until outfielder Frank Robinson arrived, and then they won four in six seasons. But Robinson was dealt off to the Los Angeles Dodgers. So the rest of the team is on its own.

Baltimore, never known for standing pat, could open the season with seven newcomers on the 25-man roster, including five rookies up from Rochester.

They include infielder Bobby Grich, who hit .383 and .336 the past two years, and outfielder Don Baylor, .327 and .313 the last two seasons. Both are labeled as "can't miss" prospects.

Also moving up from a productive farm system are Roric Harrison, 15-5, and reliever Mickey Scott, 9-1, and catcher Johnny Oates.

Moving to Baltimore in the Robinson trade are Doyle Alexander, 6-6 with Los Angeles, and reliever Bob O'Brien.

At the start, at least, Baylor and Grich are slated for spot duty behind veteran units in the outfield and infield.

Don Buford, Blair and Merv Rettenmund, the club's leading hitters the past two years, form the outfield. Baylor, Tom Shopay and Terry Crowley will be the reserves.

Ellie Hendricks and Andy Etchebarren will again be platooned at catcher. They combined for 71 RBI last year.

The incomparable Brooks Robinson at third anchors the infield which includes shortstop Mark Belanger, second baseman Dave Johnson and Powell at first. All but Powell won Golden Glove fielding awards in 1971.

Either Chico Salmon or Jerry DaVanon will join Grich in the backup role for the infield, with the loser being dealt off.

The pitching rotation of McNally, Jim Palmer, Mike Cuellar and Pat Dobson won 81 games last year and started 143 times with 71 complete games.

As a result, the bullpen didn't get much work and wasn't too effective much of the time.

Of that group, Pete Richert went to the Dodgers, Dick Hall retired and Tom Dukes, 1-5, appeared on shaky ground as spring training progressed.

Harrison, Alexander and Dave Leonhard were in a battle for the No. 5 spot starter and long relief roles, while veterans Eddie Watt and Grant Jackson were the chief short men out of the bullpen.

O'Brien could be sent back to the minors if Scott showed enough to stick, and veteran Dave Boswell was again in the position of having to impress while not getting much work.

By winning 101 games last year, the Orioles became the third team in major league history to reach that mark three consecutive seasons. If they do it again this year, they'll stand alone.

"Of course, I'd like to win 100 very much," Weaver said. "But that's not a goal. I'd just like to win the American League pennant."

When Michigan State recently beat Iowa 100-91 it marked the first time under basketball coach Gus Ganakas that one of his Spartan teams hit the century mark.

Michigan State varsity fencers Chris Hell, Paul Herring and Jim Scieszka competed as undergraduates at Culver, Ind., Military Academy.

Nets Defeat Indiana Pacers; Squires Lose

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) - The New York Nets won two games Tuesday night—their first since losing to the Virginia Squires.

New York closed out its regular season with a 92-86 victory over the Indiana Pacers, while the Virginia Squire dropped a 127-121 decision to the Carolina Cougars.

As a result, the Nets pulled within one half-game of Virginia in the race for second place in the American Basketball Association's East Division. The Squires wind up their regular season at Memphis tonight.

If Virginia loses tonight, the teams will finish in a tie with 44-40 win-loss records. A one-game playoff would be held to determine the second place finisher.

What's the difference between finishing second or third?

The difference is in first-round playoff opponents, and it's a big difference.

The second place finisher will meet the Floridians, who assured themselves of a playoff berth Tuesday night by beating Memphis, who has the dubious honor of drawing the Kentucky Colonels, the club with the best record in the entire ABA, as a first-round opponent.

In other ABA games, Dallas edged Utah 98-95 and Kentucky nipped Pittsburgh 134-132.

Jose Napoles Stops Britain's Charles

WEMBLEY, England (AP) - "The British boy never hurt me," declared a confident, elated Jose Napoles of Mexico after knocking out Britain's Ralph Charles to retain his welterweight boxing title.

It was an even bout until the 32-year-old Cuban-born champion caught the red-haired Englishman with a flurry of punches late in the seventh round Tuesday night. Napoles registered the knockout after 2 minutes, 52 seconds of the round with a left hook followed by a right cross.

Weaver Sees Even Better Orioles

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) - The Baltimore Orioles have won 318 regular season games and nine straight in the playoffs while sweeping to three straight American League pennants.

For 1972, Manager Earl Weaver sees likely improvement for the Orioles.

"There's no reason we should be any worse," Weaver said, "and chances are we'll be better."

Dave McNally, one of four Baltimore 20-game winners last year, was out of action 38 days. Boog Powell, the league's Most Valuable Player of 1970, hit below his weight at .256. Paul Blair, off to a slow start, managed to hit just .262.

Weaver, always optimistic and aggressive, doesn't expect such misfortune again.

The Orioles never won a pennant until outfielder Frank Robinson arrived, and then they won four in six seasons. But Robinson was dealt off to the Los Angeles Dodgers. So the rest of the team is on its own.

Merchandise Trade Deficit Second Highest In History

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation recorded its second highest merchandise trade deficit in history last month, the government said today.

The Commerce Department said the value of imports exceeded exports by $597 million in February, the figure topped only by the $821.4 million trade deficit last October.

At the same time, the department said its list of leading economic indicators increased in February for the eighth straight month. But the increase last month was 0.5 percent, the smallest gain in five months.

The index of the indicators tend to foreshadow future movements in the economy. The indicators have shown strong increases in recent months.

The trade deficit adds to the nation's balance-of-payments deficit and affects the stability of the dollar.

The department said it wasn't exactly sure why the deficit reached such a magnitude in February. It said the West Coast dock strike probably influenced both exports and imports but, by how much, it does not know.

The West Coast dock strike finally ended Feb. 20.

For the first two months of the year, the trade deficit soared to $916.4 million, giving the nation one of its worst starts ever in foreign trade.

One reason for the large deficit could be the recent currency realignment in which the value of the dollar fell in relation to other currencies, making U.S. exports cheaper overseas and foreign imports more expensive in the United States.

Nixon administration economists say they expect the realignment will have some bad effects temporarily until the currency settlement does the job it is supposed to do—discourage the heavy flow of imports into the United States.

Waldheim Names Congressman To U.N. Post

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has named an American congressman and a Finnish woman lawyer to high posts in his cabinet.

Rep. F. Bradford Morse, R-Mass., will be the top American in the U.N. Secretariat with the rank of under-secretary-general.

Helvi Sipilä was appointed assistant secretary-general for social and humanitarian affairs in the cabinet reshuffle announced Monday. It will be the highest position ever held by a woman in the secretariat.

Waldheim, an Austrian diplomat who became secretary-general on the retirement of U Thant on Dec. 31, also disclosed he had offered an under-secretary-generalship to Communist China. He said the Chinese were considering the post, which would cover problems related to decolonization, including racial controversies in South Africa and Rhodesia.

Berlin Wall Is Opened Up For Easter; Traffic Heavy

BERLIN (AP) — The Berlin wall opened to tens of thousands of West Berliners today. It was the first time in six years they received Communist permission to visit East Berlin and the first time in 20 they were allowed into the East German countryside.

East German border guards lifted the barriers at nine crossing points at one minute before 6 a.m. and Westerners moved rapidly through the fortified strip.

An elderly woman, the first to arrive at one crossing point, said she was going to see her children.

"They are waiting for me on the other side," she said. "I plan to stay for the entire three days I can."

West Berlin Mayor Klaus Schuetz, on a dawn patrol of wall crossing points, declared, "This is the first hour of an important event. What before only was written on paper now is being practiced. This shows that easing of tensions is not only theory."

This was a reference to the implementation of the four power Berlin accord and subsequent East-West German agreements that the Easter pass period represents. It ends April 5 and is matched by a similar period of eased controls on the land routes to Berlin, 110 miles inside East German territory.

Full implementation of these agreements, signed last year, is awaiting a Russian go ahead. Moscow is awaiting the West German vote on ratification of Chancellor Willy Brandt's treaties with it and Warsaw. The treaties recognize German territorial losses in World War II.

Both the East German regime and Brandt's government hope the wall opening will influence the ratification vote.

Flower carts were on hand to do business in the lines which formed slowly in the raw March winds. Eastward movement was a little brisker on the subways which many people chose because East German authorities ruled that only the handicapped and those traveling more than 62 miles into the countryside could bring cars.

Before the end of the pass period more than half a million West Berliners are expected to go east. The passes are good only for up to three days, however, and most people are saving their visits to include Easter Sunday. Some 300,000 applications for visits have been made—some for whole families.

Cincy Escapees Down To 11

CINCINNATI (AP) — The number of escaped prisoners from the Hamilton County Jail still at large has dropped to 11.

Daniel Simms, 29, of Cincinnati, one of 24 who broke out Mar. 20, surrendered Tuesday through his lawyer. He had been in Indiana, the lawyer said.

Simms was awaiting trial for armed robbery at the time of the escape.

Michigan Seeks Man For Murder

MONROE, Mich. (AP) — Monroe County authorities said they would begin extradition proceedings today for the return of John Britton, 41, from Toledo, Ohio, on a murder charge.

The Columbus, Ohio, man is accused of the shooting death of Earl Ludlow, a Bedford Township party store clerk who was abducted during a robbery March 21 and later found dead.

Britton and David Skrepenski, 21, of Toledo, were arrested in Toledo March 22 in connection with a separate armed robbery.

Skrepenski, charged with armed robbery in the Bedford Township holdup, waived extradition and was brought to the Monroe County Jail where he is being held in lieu of $25,000 bond.

Officials said Britton escaped Feb. 28 from the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus, where he was serving a 40-to-70-year sentence for a 1968 armed robbery.

The two men have not been connected to the killing of Joseph Satcher, 22, a Toledo service station attendant who was abducted and murdered following a holdup, authorities said.

Satcher's body was found March 22 in Monroe County about three miles from Ludlow's body, and police theorized at the time the slayings might have been related.

Afro Set Chief Starts Life Term

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Harlell Jones, leader of Cleveland's black militant Afro Set, was taken immediately to the Ohio Penitentiary in Columbus Tuesday after being sentenced to life imprisonment for second-degree murder and shooting with intent to kill.

A jury of seven women and five men, nine of them white and three black, found Jones guilty of the charges after seven hours deliberation. Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Frank Gorman passed sentence.

Defense attorney Harold Weinstein called the trial "a police frame" and said the verdict will be appealed.

"The judicial system and Mister Coyne and all he represents in this conspiracy is wrong," Jones told Gorman. He was speaking of Asst. County Prosecutor William Coyne.

"My hands are clean. My conscience is clear. I hope this sticks in your consciences."

Gorman had told the jurors that Jones did not have to pull the trigger to be found guilty of murder in the 1970 death of John Smith, 68.

The state said that Jones ordered retaliation killings for the slaying of Afro Set member Willie Lofton on Aug. 6, 1970. Lofton was shot at an east side drive-in restaurant by a security guard.
